

More Electric Washers

Sold During the Last Fourteen Months
Than in the Previous Fourteen Years!

Which is only added proof that what was "good enough for our grandmothers" is not good enough for us! The modern farmer has gathered around him the latest types of farming machinery—automatic if it can be had—he has bought automobiles and installed electric lighting systems. All of this to save time and hard labor—and to produce better results. The sensible housewife of today wants the most efficient labor and time saving devices that can be had; and that is right reasoning, also.

Mrs. Z. C. Price was the guest of honor at a surprise dinner party celebrating her 74th birthday, at the farm home last Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Claude Price planned all the details of the event, and 22 relatives gathered to wish the honoree many happy returns of the day. The dinner itself was a delectable feast, the favorite family dishes appearing in the retinue of the banquet, and never did the festal board display a more goodly and gracious assemblage of countenances. Music and conversation touching upon family topics rounded out an afternoon of genuine delight which caused each one present to feel in high good humor with his fellow-beings and himself.

At the quarterly conference meeting held Monday evening at the M. E. Church, South, it was decided to erect a new parsonage of attractive design and modern appointments. Rev. A. J. Starmer left Tuesday morning for a district conference meeting at Julietta, Idaho. From there he goes to Peach, Washington, to assist in a revival meeting. Rev. E. W. Achilles will occupy the local pulpit in the morning, and Mrs. H. S. Shangle will give the evening address, next Sunday. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Tom Diggins Junior, a rather venturesome youth of Basket mountain, tried to ride a steer the other day in the field where his father's stock is pastured, beyond Walla Walla. He playfully jumped from his horse to the steer's back and stuck with the surprised and angry animal for awhile. When thrown he suffered a wrenched shoulder and a sprained leg, and several of his teeth were jarred loose. He has since been riding a pair of crutches at a Walla Walla hospital.

Fred Heath has sold the Marshall place of 160 acres on Reed and Hawley mountain to J. McLouth for $6200. About 150 cords of wood are included. Mr. Heath, who came from Stanfield, handled the place profitably during his brief ownership and expresses much confidence in mountain soil. Mr. McLouth is a man of family and comes from the John Day country. Another new comer on Reed and Hawley is Lee Dennis of Athena, who has rented the Winder place.
