J. A. Lumsden has been trading quite a bit in work stock the past few days. In one of his transactions he acquired six head of mules from Sim J. Culley and parted with a span of horses. Mr. Lumsden lost a good work mule recently, the animal having been inconsiderate enough to break its leg.

Scott Banister recently returned from a visit to his holdings in the La Crosse neighborhood. He found crop prospects bright. There was less freezing than at Weston, and winter moisture has entered the soil to a depth of about 18 inches. Scott has about 360 acres in wheat, which shows a good stand.

Last Thursday being the birthday anniversary of R. L. Reynaud, his wife arranged an evening surprise party in honor of the event. The merry-making was a complete success, inasmuch as the head of the house was taken unawares but expressed delight in the unusual celebration. Receipts of the automobile department for February, 1920, as shown by a report issued by the secretary of state were $200,856, as against $38,796.50 for the same month in 1919. The large increase is due, according to Sam A. Koser, in charge of the motor vehicle department, to the new law, which increased the license fees for all classes of motor vehicles.

Eight democrats and five republicans have filed formal declaration of their candidacy for delegates to their respective party conventions. Fully a score of republicans have been mentioned as possible candidates or have expressed a desire to be delegates, but they have not taken the trouble to file with the secretary of state. Half a dozen democrats are preparing to file.

Under the market road act there will be available about $2,000,000 during this and succeeding years for the development of strictly market roads in the various counties. Through the action of this law the state will eventually be webbed to the most remote sections by feeder roads. The law was enacted in 1919, with some amendments at the special session in 1920, and it will be placed in operation this year. Because of the importance of laying a suitable groundwork for future development of the market road system, the state highway commission has for the state been working out a policy for applying the enactment. The result of this exhaustive research and investigation has been embodied in a set of regulations which has just been issued by the commission.
