The library benefit given at Memorial hall last Friday evening was both a social and financial success. The net proceeds from the supper and motion picture entertainment were about $80 which will be applied toward the maintenance of the local library. John Ruskin once said, "If the public libraries were half as costly as public dinners or books cost the tenth part of what brace lets do, even foolish men and women might sometimes suspect that there was good in reading." One of the happy surprises of the evening was the gift from Henry Schroeder of 10 volumes of Victor Hugo's works, 110 volumes of Kipling's tales and three volumes of Plato, all bound in three-quarter leather. These books will be a rich addition to the library shelves. The library board desires to extend hearty thanks to the public for their generous aid and patronage.

In honor of her niece, Miss Atress McCorkle, Mrs. Albert O'Harra was hostess for a most delightful party at her country home, Friday evening. Cards and dancing provided entertainment for the affair, and at a late hour a delicious collation was served by the hostess. The number contributed by Miss Maxine Colley a difficult Hayden sonata was remarkably well rendered. Visitors present were: Mrs. Anna Anderson, Miss Mina Price and Miss Helen Rayborn.

One of the pleasures of spring is to watch W. A. Barnes ploughing in a large field, long, straight furrows of brown earth. The sober horses plod steadily back and forth with nodding heads as though affirming their belief in the work undertaken and their willingness to aid in its accomplishment. In just such fields is the wealth of the world, and the health of it, too.

In a letter to S. A. Barnes, William MacKenzie, former Westonite, writes from Coffee Creek, "Montana, that two commercial oil wells have been struck within a few miles of his farm. Another well is being drilled two miles away, with good indications. Mr. MacKenzie says that crop prospects in his section of Montana are good this year.

While R.E. York was in Walla Walla last Friday night his Hudson car was stolen. It was found the following Sunday on Russell creek, five miles from Walla Walla, and eight horses were required to pull it out of a ditch in which it had been abandoned. An overcoat, a mackinaw, one tire and three inner tubes were missing.

Having completed a sojourn of several weeks in town, Mrs. R. Morrison, accompanied by her father, G. S. Taylor, returned Sunday to the Morrison ranch. Advent of spring hurried them to the open to view the rich black earth, green hilltops, and inhale the perfume of wild flowers along the fence.

Established 1891

Save and Pay Up

Treasury Department advises that it is just as necessary to save at this time as during the war. Production is low and distribution hampered by lack of cars.

In your program of saving it might be well to visit the Weston Mercantile Co. during their sale and purchase such supplies as you may need while the price is reduced. Do not forget that Jones & Jones carry a complete, up-to-date stock of farm and home supplies. Other Weston stores have complete stocks in their lines and
