"Meantime, what of Mr. Root?" asks Boston Post, after quoting an anti-league newspaper to the effect that Harding and Lodge have pronounced "a two-fold sentence of death" upon the league. It goes on to say: "That gentleman has just finished a plan for the establishment of an international judicial tribunal for which he is receiving the applause of the world. But is this work of his preparatory to the founding of Mr. Harding's 'New Relationship?' It is not. It is performed at the request of the League of Nations and must be passed upon by the Supreme Council of the very organization that the present leaders of Mr. Root's own party declare is the iniquitous 'super-government at Geneva,' and to kill which Mr. Harding declares his intention. In giving the best of his intellect, judgment and experience to 'crooked internationalism,' as one shrieking foe of the great association of nations calls it, Elihu Root must wonder what has hit his party since he left the United States to take up his work for the league at The Hague."

Good crops, good prices, good times, good roads. Yes, there is and will be plenty of money in this particular neck o' the woods. It behooves the smaller towns on the highway between Pendleton and Walla Walla to see that these big sisters do not get the lion's share, now that the paved road will practically annihilate distance as we formerly knew it. All that is needed is to attract and hold the trade with bright stores and good stocks. The smaller towns have good stores already, but there's always a chance to make them brighter and better. Good roads mean stronger competition for the smaller towns. They must strive if they would thrive.

Mark Sullivan finds that the democratic campaign hasn't really got going. We would like to see it keep in low gear and the republicans slow down to match. A campaign without campaigning would for once afford positive relief and give the sovereign citizen a chance to vote as he jolly well pleases without being pestered by political jazz or ballyhoo. There's a helluva lot of jokum in a campaign, anyhow. Most of us know it and some of us are getting somewhat tired of it.

Replying to the esteemed Oregonian's query as to whether or not we consider Bryan a liar, we will say that we do not. But we do think that now and then he qualifies as a chump, and that he isn't always right by a jugful of grapejuice. There was a time when The Peerless One was the foremost champion of free silver that the Great Only did not quote him with such gleeful gusto.

Capella, the charming star that lies nearer the North Star than any other of the brightest celestial bodies, has made its appearance in the northeastern sky. When birds are preparing for the fall migration and the dainty wild asters bloom by the roadside, Capella arises in the evening sky to remain a constant ornament of the nights for the ensuing ten months.

If the loss of Hearst's support is equivalent to the loss by Cox of his only chance of election, as pointed out by certain republican newspapers, then is Cox fortunate in losing his only chance of election. He may not be president but he will continue to be a man—not the spineless puppet of a red and yellow journalist.

Weston must at least pave Main street if it would keep in shouting distance of the procession of East End towns. A cost of around $2.30 per square yard for hard surface, which Pendleton is now paying, is by no means prohibitive.

Thistle-down, one of the most beautiful and clever creations of Nature, floats lazily upon the passing breeze. The thoughtful observer sees in the gliding by of the airy tufts an indication that summer is on the wane.

Bend, Oregon, young man (now defunct) took carbolic acid because the girl he loved didn't care for him. Better all around if, in the language of the late Bill Nye, he had merely taken umbrage.

An Oregon paper company has bought $250,000 worth of pulpwood timber—which fact, we are happy to add, is another proof of our increasing circulation.

We note a recent wheeze to the effect that "women who have the most to wear seem to wear the least." It's a bare possibility.

Looks like wasted energy for the Holsheviks to be fighting for possession of the Bug, when they have one already.

However, the Lord Mayor of Cork didn't pep out of Ireland; he was merely deported.

U. S. CONSIDERS AID FOR POLAND

Purchase of War Materials Is Requested and Recruits Are Desired.

Washington.—Moved by the reiterated pleas for aid from Poland, the war department has under serious consideration the request of Prince Lubomirsky, Polish minister, for permission to purchase war materials from the United States.

Polish officials explained that in addition to the desire for war materials, they were anxious to obtain authorization to permit recruiting for the Polish army in America. It was said that not only had many offers of enlistment been received by the legation from Polish citizens resident in the United States, but that many offers had come from former American veterans.

The official communique announcing the intention of France to recognize as a de facto government that represented by General Wrangel in southern Russia, has been received.

It says that a French diplomatic agent will be sent to Sebastopol with the title of high commissioner.

Copies of the American note to Italy on the Polish situation, it was said at the state department, have been delivered to allied and associated powers' representatives and distributed to all the world news centers, promising its widest dissemination, even in Russia. Diplomats generally regarded the document as having a three-fold purpose:

Extension of moral support to Poland.

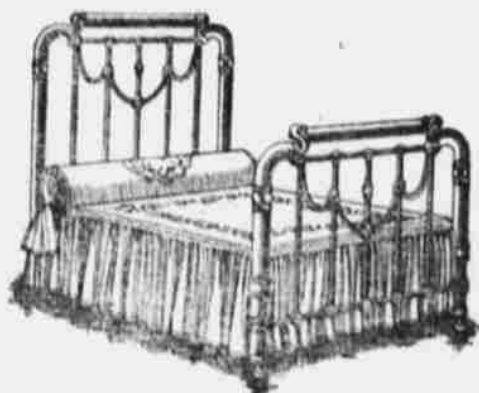

An appeal to the masses in Russia to throw off the bolshevik yoke and establish a constitutional government.

Influencing of other nations to refrain from recognition of the soviet.

Still Owner Fined $150.

Jim Overturff, resident of the Free-water district, was apprehended last Friday by Sheriff Taylor with an illicit still in his possession. He was arrested, the still and some booze confiscated, and Monday, Overturff paid a hundred and fifty dollar fine in Judge Richards' court. Judge Richards was absent, and County Judge Marsh assessed the fine on Overturff.

The still outfit, a new one, was found in Overturff's barn. It is understood he had but recently purchased it.
