FRIDAY, SEPT. 3, 1920

Entered at the postoffice at Weston, Oregon, as second-class mailmatter.

This from The Oregonian occasions a fellow feeling for the metropolis that it should share in the burden of a denmition nuisance common to the country towns: "All good men and true, with their wives and kiddies and sundry relations, will wish the city well in its resolve to cut the weeds from vacant lots. There is a harvest, indeed, that has waited for too long.
A most villainous herbage covers acres of suburban real estate, and even encroaches on the downtown district. It is the domain of the burdock and the thistle, and the refuge of rats both human and rodential." Along with our sympathy over Portland's plight, however, is mixed a sly feeling not wholly regretful. Often a small boy with the itch isn't sorry when his big brother gets to scratching.

The German-American National Conference finds that Wilson has pursued a "perfidious foreign policy." We fancy that the ex-kaiser endorses this view, but will it appeal to the unhyphenated American?
The resolution passed by the conference read as follows, and the more publicity given it the less, we think, will it help the republican ticket:
"In view of certain enlightened statements in Senator Harding's speech of acceptance and in his subsequent utterances expressing his unalterable opposition to the League of Nations and the perfidious foreign policy of the present administration, we shall, unless unexpected events transpire, regard it as our duty to support the republican candidate."

We gather that the esteemed Oregonian condemns us as blindly partisan because we are not as one with William Jennings Bryan in sulking in his tent. But is the Great Only itself entirely free from partisanship in saying that it would oppose Cox, wet or dry, because he is a democrat? Once a strong league of nations advocate, isn't it supporting a republican candidate who is frankly against the league? Our own view is that this powerful big journalistic pot ought to feel a bit like a bully in jumping on a poor little truly rural newspaper kettle and calling it black.

We are still wondering what sort of a gift it was Chief Tall Pine handed Irvin S. Cobb at Pendleton, with the suggestion that if he came to the Round Up he would get plenty more of the same. Cobbswinked, we are told, and remarked: "I get you, bo." Yet it wasn't the sort of a sample that one would be led to suppose from these mysterious happenings.
It is no case for a prohibition officer.
We think we know Chief Tall Pine, and if there were aught of bottled cheer in that little box the noted humorist would have gone his way with thirst quenched from Round Up town.

The remarkable growth of the motion picture industry is indicated by these statistics assembled by New York Tribune: Fifteen thousand regular theatres are showing motion pictures. Twelve thousand legitimate theatres are showing motion pictures. Twenty-five hundred of them change two or three times each week.
Daily attendance at picture theatres is fifteen million. Total income of motion picture theatres in 1919 was three-quarters of a billion dollars.
In this country there are 830 different chains of motion picture theatres.

Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougner said what is slangily known as an car-ful in a Portland sermon Sunday last in the following sentence: "Nothing has brought more misery into homes, caused so much trouble in churches and hindered the progress of God's kingdom in the world as the failure on the part of people to control their tempers and have a kind, sweet, helpful disposition."

If the union of nations that Harding says he wants were now in existence and a democratic president had been identified with its organization, Harding would be against it and for a league of nations—article ten and all.

The New Jersey senator having returned from Europe to take part in the slush fund investigation, the republicans seem to have an Edge on the democrats.

Whether the "slush fund" of the republican managers was intended to be three or fifteen millions, they'll only be wasting it anyway.

Two separators tipped over a few days ago in the Touchet hills. Some places up there remind one of the late Bill Nye's North Carolina farm, where he could look up the chimney and see the cows come home.

Common-law Texas oil companies are found to be swindling thousands of Oregon people who have plenty of money for worthless stocks but are quite likely the howlingest howlers over the high cost of living.

Germany is said to brand her goods for England "Made in America," and her goods for America "Made in England." Herein are methods of traffic possessing a peculiar appeal to the Teutonic mind.

It would simplify matters for the average voter to learn out of their own mouths whether Cox is wet or dry and Harding is dry or wet.
"Pussyfooting" should be left to the tomcats.

"If we were Lenine, instead of getting advice of those German generals we'd consult some of the winners," says James J. Montague.

"Wheat Goes Higher Today" is just about the best news the daily papers can convey these times to the agricultural communities.

We learn with interest that the senate committee is going to hear Moore about that g. o. p. campaign barrel.

The lower house in Tennessee is evidently built upon a quicksand.

Will Sing at The Standard

An added attraction of Paramount-Arctcraft' Week at the Standard Theatre, Athena, will be the singing of Lela G. Saling, Weston's gifted dramatic soprano. The program is one in which the brilliancy, beauty and power of Mrs. Saling's voice will be displayed to especial advantage, and is sure to please the music lovers among the Paramount-Arctcraft audiences. Mrs. Saling has consented to sing three nights, as follows:

Sunday, September 5—(a) "A Gypsy Maiden I;" (b) "The Rosary."

Thursday—(a) "Il Bacio" (The Kiss); (b) "In Italy."

Friday—(a) "Parla;" (b) "Break o' Day."

Miss Ruby Price will be Mrs. Sal-ing's accompanist.
