A. M. JENSEN COMPANY
 THE MODERN DAYLIGHT STORE OF WALLA WALLA

A REAL KENTUCKY STILL IS RAIDED NEAR MILTON

A moonshine still, the most complete in detail, that has been taken by Sheriff Taylor in his raids against the moonshiners was captured in a cave on the Walla Walla river above Milton Tuesday, and with its owner, a fellow named Benson, was brought to Athena and turned over to Judge Richards' court.

Benson paid a fine of $200 and had a wad of money left. After his hearing and payment of the fine, Benson talked freely to several on the street.

He attributed the finding of his still and his capture by Sheriff Taylor and Deputy St. Clair, to a couple of boy trappers, who a couple of days before had been seen by him in the vicinity of the cave in which the still was located. That the boys were in the cave, Benson said he was sure for a couple of sticks which he had placed in a certain manner at the entrance had been disturbed. He believes the boys told of the location of the still, which was a complete affair consisting of a large copper tank, coils, heating apparatus, etc.

The officers say that Benson evidently is an expert at the business. He had secreted his still in a cave on the banks of the Walla Walla river where he operated for three months within 40 feet of passing fishermen. The officers brought over several quarts of moonshine whiskey and some shelled corn, and before leaving the cave, they destroyed a quantity of mash.

The Milton-Freewater district appears to be a favorite haunt for the moonshiners, as this is at least the third outfit from there that has figured in Judge Richards' court. A man named Hill was brought before the Judge Monday for his hearing. He was fined $150, which amount he said he would secure at Freewater. He was returned to the county jail.

STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of stockholders of the Weston Mercantile Company will be held at Memorial hall, Weston, Oregon, on January 19, 1921, at 2:30 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing a board of directors and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

Weston, Or., Dec. 31, 1920.
 J. H. WILLIAMS, Secretary.

Petition for Guardian

Petition was filed Tuesday with the probate court to have a guardian appointed for Roy Key, the young Weston farmer arrested for breaking into two Athena stores and taking some watches and jewelry. Defendant is cited to appear in court, January 10 and show cause why he should not be adjudged incompetent and placed under a guardian's care.

It is reported that it is generally known by those in close touch with the young man, that for some time he has shown evidence of not being responsible for many of his actions. His burglarizing of the two stores here is cited as one instance in particular, for the reason that he was possessed of sufficient means to purchase anything he needed.

The charge of his breaking into the stores here has not been pushed, presumably on account of knowledge of the young man's mental condition.

Double Header Basket Ball

Weston High school stars of a brilliant past were bedimmed by a new constellation last night in a double header contest. The alumni team of girls was defeated by a score of 19 to 12, Jackson being credited with 17 of the high school points. The boys' game was fast and exciting. The confident vets walked away with the first half, but the superior condition of the rookies told and they won out by consistent playing in the second period, the final score being 24 to 22 in High's favor. Bulfinch at center played a dazzling game for High in the second half. Emery Staggs, veteran of many a hard-fought field in a remote yet glorious past, refereed the event. Pody Duncan judged the girls' game, and having taken the precaution to get his locks clipped, lost no hair.

President H. S. Shangle of Columbia college, Milton, will occupy the pulpit of the M. E. Church, South, Sunday morning and deliver an address on "Education."

An unusually large number of Christmas trees were employed this year to give a festive Yuletide appearance to Weston homes. Among those who rejoiced over new and brilliant electric decorations for their resplendent evergreens were the Frank Price and R. L. Reynaud households.

Master James Ferguson of Pendleton is spending the holidays at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. M. C. Ferguson, on Weston mountain.

Regular quarterly communion service will be held Sunday morning at the United Brethren church, with sermon by the pastor.

Miss Vida Greer, who is attending business college at Walla Walla, is at home for the holidays.

Elder J. W. Barnett of Bandon, Oregon, will begin a series of meetings next Sunday at the Church of the Brethren. There will be services every evening next week, also. All the people of Weston and vicinity are invited to attend by John Bonewitz, elder in charge.

The Saturday Afternoon club will hold its first meeting of the new year January 8 at the home of Mrs. H. Goodwin.

This section was visited Wednesday night with another heavy rain. Snow was melted in the mountains, and by Thursday morning Pine creek had been converted into a raging torrent. Some observers declared that the creek reached the highest stage ever known in the December season, having usually waited until spring for its tantrums. The flood soon subsided, and no damage is reported. Sunshine succeeded the rain, and the weather holds a suggestion of spring.

The Farm Bureau meeting conducted at Weston Monday by Prof. G. R. Hyslop of Oregon Agricultural college, and Fred Bennion, county agriculturist, proved to be of much interest and value. The wheat and potato growers of the district were well represented, and listened attentively to lectures based on years of careful experimentation.

The local library circulated 95 books among its patrons Wednesday afternoon—the largest number of volumes handled in one afternoon for many months.

Rev. W. S. Payne will begin a series of meetings next Sunday, to continue three weeks, at the Methodist church in Touchet, Wash.

Miss Thelma Anderson arrived Friday from Homestead, Oregon, to pass the holiday season at the family home in this city.
