A DEAR LITE.

To the Editor of the Oregon City Enterprise:

A lady who is known to many of us at Portland, has left the city, and now resides in this city, and we are enabled to give a few facts respecting her life, which may be of some interest to our readers.

She was a young woman of a quiet and retiring disposition, and was always respected for her kind and gentle manners.

She left the city several years ago, and has since that time been living in a different part of the country.

She is now married to a gentleman of good character, and is living in peace and happiness.

We are happy to learn that she is doing well, and that she is enjoying the blessings of her new home.

We trust that she may continue to do so, and that she may be happy and contented in all things.

Yours truly,
