The Radicals.

There can be said to remain outside of the game of capitalist politics, the Republican party, as it is now constituted. There is a species of party which is bringing about its own downfall, and the Republican party is that species. The Republican party, as it should be, never was a party of the people, and it can never be so under the present form. The Republicans were the party of the people when it was the policy of the people, and the present Republican party is the party of the people only when it is the policy of the people. The Republicans are the party of the people only when it is the policy of the people, and the present Republican party is the party of the people only when it is the policy of the people. The Republicans are the party of the people only when it is the policy of the people, and the present Republican party is the party of the people only when it is the policy of the people. The Republicans are the party of the people only when it is the policy of the people, and the present Republican party is the party of the people only when it is the policy of the people.