A MERE TYLE SETTER.

BY J. L. BATES.

'A mere type-setter!"—still a man The world, perchance, may well revere Unknown, unnoticed, one who can Have nought to hope and nought to fear. Yet where's the kingly sceptered hand. The brow that wears the pricely gem. That wields so well a wide command -Whose "stick" may match a giadem.

A mere type-setter!" let us see: Who gave the glorious stripes to air. That mark the banner of the free; And bound the stars that glimmer there Who turned the bolt of heaven aside,

And conquered its ethereal fire? a ho hade the lightning harmless glide Along his magic wand and wire?

A mere type setter. Search the past, The record of each battle-field: Who nailed our colors to the mast And died because they could not yield Who taught our hand to strike the blow Through toil, and danger and distress That severed England's chain of woe-

Who but the mas er of the "Press?" 'A mere type-setter!" Name of fear, To bid the slave of freedom wakebut tyrany should quake to hear. And old appression's empire shake? s Franklin a torgotten name.
