

A DEMURE-LOOKING chap hailed a charcoal peddler with the query, "Have you got charcoal in your wagon?" "Yes, sir," said the expectant driver, stopping his horses. "That's right," observed the demure chap, with an approving nod; "always tell the truth, and people will respect you!" And he hurried on, much to the regret of the peddler, who was getting out of the wagon to look for a buck.

At a negro camp-meeting the colored preacher said: "I tell you, bladdered brethren, dat de debil is a big bog, and one of these days he'll come along and root you all out." An old negro in one of the anxious pews, hearing this, raised himself from the straw, and clasped his hands, exclaimed in the agony of his tears: "Ring him, Lord! ring him!"

The New York World thinks that Connolly made a grave mistake when he joined the Democratic party. He ought to have called himself a Republican. Because, had he done so, his conviction as a dishonest office-holder would have been followed by a serene from Fisk's band and a complimentary speech by Opldyke. As it is, he occupies a prison cell, and awaits the verdict of a jury, while his fellow-swindler Murphy expects a fat diplomatic office.

A man in Berlin, Vt., has posted the following "notis" in the village post-office:

My wife, Mary Miller, having deceived me in regard to her age, before marriage, claiming to be 26 only, when she was 32, with teeth badly decayed, while I am not 22, with perfectly good teeth, therefore I will pay no debts of her contracting.

A wealthy young farmer in Ohio made a vow at the time of his marriage, that he would plant forty peach or apple trees for each child born during the first ten years of his wedded life. He has about 320 trees. He talks about retracting, as he hasn't the land to spare.

The noblest thing on earth is the man who rises to the dignity of self-mastery. The man who can refuse indulgence to a clamoring desire; can hold the craving appetite ungratified, and can say to a rising passion: "Peace—be still" is a hero above Alexander or Hercules.

Wonder mongers in Poland are jubilating just now at the presence among them of a Russian peasant of giant size. This titanic personage is nearly nine feet in height, and modestly claims to be the tallest man in the world. He is probably correct in his assertion.

Miss Kane, of Baltimore, set out to write a list of wrongs of women, but found so many of them that she was driven to the conclusion that women suffer a wrong in being born at all. This dispels the whole question in a nutshell.

A society for the prevention of cruelty to babies should be organized at Xenia, Ohio. No less than one dozen wretched mothers in that poor village named their poor innocent little babies "Ulysses Grant."

The new State Capitol of Iowa will be 350 feet north and south, and 244 feet wide; the height of centre and wings, 94 feet to the top of the cornice, and the rest 85 feet. The last General Assembly appropriated $150,000, and of this $120,000 has been spent.

In taking down a beautiful painted canvas ceiling at All-Souls' College, Oxford, England, recently, fifteen ancient paintings were discovered attached to the roof, where they had been unknown to any one, for two centuries.

The following notice, printed on colored cardboard, with a nice border, hangs up in a place of business in Rome, N. Y.: "Mebbee you don't petter had leaf root here, ven you don't got some pecunia, ain't it?"

A magnificent winter garden with cafe and theater attachments, is being laid out in Rome under the direction of an English architect. A national theater of united Italy is contemplated in the scheme.

BEAT THEM.—A little boy in Danbury asked a lady friend of his mother's who made her teeth. She replied, "God." "Well," remarked the young hopeful, "Dr. Mercer made mother's, and they beat yours by a darned sight."

A Michigan woman, the wife of an invalid, and mother of twenty-six children, picked cranberries enough last fall to pay off a mortgage on her farm.

Pondering.—Horace Greeley is said to be in retirement at present, pondering the great question: "Will candragoo explode?"

How to do it.—"Doctor, how can I expand my chest?" "By constantly carrying a large heart in it."

Home and Farm.

A German forest-keeper, eighty-two years old, not wishing to carry to the grave an important secret, publishes in the Leipzig Journal a receipt he has used for fifty years, and which, he says has saved several men and a great number of animals from a horrible death by hydrophobia. The bite must be washed as soon as possible with warm vinegar and water, and when this has dried, a few drops of muriatic acid poured upon the bite, will destroy the poison of the saliva and relieve the patient from all present or future danger.

THE BEST BREED OF SHEEP. In answer to the query, which was the most profitable breed, a speaker said that, considering the varied conditions presented in our climatology, botany and agriculture, no other breed possessed so many requisite conditions as the American Merino, it being fitted to occupy a very wide range of the desired points in any breed, and coming nearer to universal adaptation than any other. The Saxon sheep may have a fine fibre, the Silurian and French a larger frame and greater length of wool, but for compactness of form, sound constitution, strength of fibre, and quantity of wool suited to a variety of uses, our improved Merino is unapproachable. In some parts where meats are high, English breeds are more profitable and popular. The Cotswolds appeared to be preferred—some for their mutton-producing qualities. The Southdowns are preferred by three-fourths of the breeders for their early production of lambs. The Leicester are to highly bred. The Lincoln as modified by the breed of last year, is a magnificent animal, producing a lustrous combing wool of great length. It is greatly to be desired that the efforts of honest and reliable breeders of really fine animals should receive encouragement.—Columbia's Rural World.

WHAT SLEEP WILL CURE. The cry for rest has always been louder than the cry for food. Not that it is more important, but it is often harder to get. The best rest comes from sound sleep. Of two men or women, otherwise equal, the one who sleeps the best will be the most moral, healthy and efficient.

Sleep will do much to cure irritability of temper, peevishness, nervousness. It will cure insanity. It will build up and make strong a weary body. It will do much to cure dyspepsia, particularly that variety known as nervous dyspepsia. It will relieve the languor and prostration felt by consumptives. It will cure hypochondria. It will cure headache. It will cure neuralgia. It will cure a broken spirit. It will cure sorrow.

Indeed we might make a long list of nervous maladies that it will cure. The cure of sleeplessness, however, is not so easy, particularly in those who carry grave responsibilities. The habit of sleeping well is one which, if broken up for any length of time, it is not easily regained. Often a severe illness treated by powerful drugs, so deranges the nervous system that sleep is never sweet after. Or perhaps long continued watchfulness produces the same effect; or hard study, or too much exercise of the muscular system, or tea and whisky drinking, and tobacco using. To break up the habit, are required:

- 1. A good clean bed.
2. Sufficient exercise to produce weariness, and pleasant occupation.
3. Good pure air and not too warm a room.
4. Freedom from much care.
5. A clear stomach.
6. A clear conscience.
7. Avoidance of stimulents or narcotics.

THE UNWEARIED ACTION OF THE HEART. The effect of everything that touches the heart is multiplied by the intensity of the heart's own changes. Hence it is that it is so sensitive, so true and quick an index of the body's state. Hence, also, it is that it never wearies. Let me remind you of the work done by our hearts in a day. A man's total outward work, his whole effort upon the world in a day, a man's total outward work, his whole effort upon the world in twenty-four hours, has been reckoned about 350 foot-tons. That may be taken as a good "hard day's work." During the same time the heart has been working at the rate of 120 foot-tons. That is to say, if all the pulses of a day and night could be concentrated and welded into one great throbb, that throbb would be enough to throw a ton of iron 120 feet into the air. And yet the heart is never weary. Many of us are tired after but feeble labors; few of us can hold a poker out at arm's length without, after a few minutes dropping it. But a healthy heart, and many an unsound heart, too—though sometimes you can tell in the evening, by its stroke, that it has been thrown of its balance by the turmoils and worries of life—goes on beating through the night when we are asleep, and when we wake in the morning, we find it at work, fresh as if it had only just begun to beat. It does this because upon each stroke of work there follows a period of rest; because the real period of rest; because the next stroke which comes is but the natural sequence of that rest, and made to match it; because, in fact, each beat is, in force, in scope, in character, in everything, the simple expression of the heart's own energy and state.—Appleton's Journal.

The popular superstition that overturning the salt is unlucky, originated in a picture of the Last Supper, by Leonardo da Vinci, in which Judas Iscariot is represented as overturning the salt.

VERY NEAR.—An impudent youngster came very near getting his ears boxed the other night at a wedding party for wishing the bride many "happy returns of the day."
