In the Good Old Days, Horace Greeley!

In the good old days, Horace Greeley, When you and I were young. Men served their country freely. And our Statesmen had brains and tongue;

The honest and brave Anglo Saxon Found leaders as true as the day: Some followed the standard of Jackson. And some of us shouted for Clay. C DRUS-

But now we are aged and gray. Horace, A man without brains or a tongue Corrupts with Division and Silence The country we loved when young.

In the good old days of our nation. When Benton and Webster did live, Men were honored for their station. And not for the presents they'd give; Then little we thought a Butler Would make us the Moslems' taunt, That the robbers would find for a suffer. The brainless and tongueless Grant.

CHORUS-

But now we are aged and gray, Horace, etc.

When for you and Missouri's sen Our bonfires of victory burn. Horace, And the battle of freedom is won Then we'll send Consul Butler to regions That are warmer than Egypt's clime, And scatter Ulysses' legions. Whose watchword is "Plunder and Crime !

Horace.

The man without brains or a tongue life? Shall be stripped of his tyrannous sway. Horace,

By the country we loved when young.
