Democrats, but who prefer the election of Grant, have allowed themselves to be used by the Grantites and have procured tickets printed with the names of O'Conor and Adams on them, not even carrying the joke so far as to get up a set of self-constituted Electors. Now we do not question the right of these parties to vote and use their influence for O'Conor or Grant, but w do deny their right to do so and claim to be Democrats. It is true that Mr. Greeley has heretofore been a Radical, and we believe he is still one on the questions which divided him and the Democracy in the past. But these questions are not at issue in the present canvass. They have been retired, as it were, for the purpose of settling greater and more important issues now upon the country. When the Baltimore Convention met, it found a ticket and platform before the people which was pledged to certain vital principles at issue. These the Convention adopted as its own and retired, for the time being, all others. This the Baltimore Convention had a lightimate right to was there such unanimity in the action of a National Convention. All acquiesced in its action, and the Convention was composed of as true and pure Democrats as we have in the land. We may doubt
