NOW.

BY CHARLES MACKAY.

The venerable Past is past; There d. was another day. Why should we sit where ivies creep, And shroud ourselves in charnels deep, Or the world's yesterdays deplore Mid crumbfing rules' mossy hoar? Looking at Was from morn to night. When the beautious Now, the divine To Be Woo with their charms our living sight Why should we hear but echoes dull When the world of sound, so beautiful, Will give us music of our own? Why in the darkness should we grope, Wien the sun, heaven's resplendent cop Shines as bright as ever it shone?

The Present needs us. Every age Bequeaths the next for heritage @ No lazy luxury or delight, But strennous labor for the right; For Now, the child and sire of Time, Demands the deeds of carnest men To make it better than the past And stretch the circle of its ken Now is a fact that men deplore. Though it might bless them evermore; Would they but lashion it aright. 'Tis ever new, 'ris ever bright. Time nor Elernity hash seen A repetition of delight In all his phases; ne'er hath been For men or angels that which is; And that which is bath ceased to be Ere we have breathed it, and is place Is last in the eternity. But Now is ever good and fair,

-000-00-Be Not Idle.

A wise and judicious writer truy says there is a fault we all condemn in the young and in others, and too often indulge in, without remorse, ourselves. That fault is idleness. There is a busy idleness which sometimes blinds us to its nature-we seem to ourselves, and umphs by denying the denials of perhaps others, to be occupied; but what is the result of it all? What Hannah Moore calls "a quiet and dull flitting away of time," whether it be in "unprofitable small talk, or in constant idle reading, or sauntering over some piece of idle work," is surely "not redeeming the time," and yet how many days and hours are thus unprofitably wasted and neither ourselves nor others benefitted. All women who have much liesure are liable to this fault; and besides its own sinfulness, for surely waste of time is a sin, it encourages a weak, unenergetic frame of mind, and is apt to produce either apathetic content in trifling occupation or a restless desire for excitement or amusement, to help on the weary time these trifles cannot kill; and those who have their time entirely at their own disposal, with perhaps no definite duty to occupy them, should quard resolutely against waste of time.
