FRIDAY, : 9 FEBRUARY 21, 1873. " Only a Farmer's Daughter."

"She is only a farmer's daughter," A stylish lady said. With a scoruful glance of her handsome

And a toss of her hanty head. She was filled and flounded and furbelowed

In the very latest style ; Her head was a wonder of crimps and curls. And her train something less than a mile. Her hands, that spankled with many a ring,

Were shapely and fair to view .-As they well might be, for no useful work Were they ever allowed to do. To hear her talk of the "lower class," Of their sins against propriety,

Of "her family." and of "country girls," And her horror of "mixed society," One would think that among her ancestry, She numbered, at least, an Earl,

(Her father was once a carpenter, And her mother a factory girl.) They say she is brilliant and beautiful; I will not their words deny. But ah! the farmer's daughter

Is fairer by far, to myceye. She is not in the height of fashion, But is very becomingly dressed, With flounces enough for comfort And they look as if made of the best,

The ruses and lities upon her cheeks By mistire are warranted pure : She never bought them at Hinsdale's, Neither at Ward's, I am sure.

Mirth and innocent happiness Out of her blue eyes shine; Her hair is untortured by crimps and curls

And she wears it by right divine. Though her fingers can skillfully touch the keys? They can wash the dishes as well ;

And her voice, that sings blithely, at work or at play, Doth charm as with musical spell. No mother toils in the kitchen for her, While she on the sofa fells,

Novel in hand, dressed in her best, Receiving her morning calls. A share in the heat and the burden of life She willingly, cheerfully takes, Any duty and love, in that happy home,

A pleasure of labor makes. Of that wisdom and knowledge whose gift is power. She has more than an average share. And daily, some lesson from nature she learns At her school in the open air. And though you may smile at this carious

I have seen her with hoe in hand. While she planted the corn, or waged war on the weeds. When man's help was searce in the land.

And her flowers-well, next summer you'll see yourself. As you ride past the farm on the prairie And mark the home, covered with roses and vines, The work of this Martha or Mary!

And I sure you will say, spite the verdict of those Who live but in fashion's gay which, That "Only a farmer's daughter" means

Only a sensible girl! Recognition to the second second The following verse is as true as anything of the kind we ever heard, although it is old: I once had money and a friend On both I set great store,

I lent my money to my friend And took his word therefore, I asked my money of my friend And naught but words I got I lost my money and my friend

For sue him I would not. If I had money and a friend As I had once before,

And play the fool no more.

A NATION OF LIABS.—The island of Ceylon is very beautiful, the scenery lovely, and the soil productive in spices and many kinds of fruit; indeed, it is said that it alone might profince sufficient coffee for the consumption of the entire world. The natives, however are far from pleasing. They are generally of short stature, very effeminate looking, ap- PRODUCE of all kinds bought, for which I pathetic, and such liars that it is impossible to depend upon their word. It they may but repose for hour after hour under a tree, with a piece of bread fruit beside | stock of Spring Goods. them, they seem to care for little else. The men wear their hair turned up behind with a comb, denoting the rank of the wearer. This, and the small features, give them altogether such an effeminate appearance that it is difficult for a European to distinguish them from females. A visitor lately entered one of the schools. and, seeing a row of poys sitting with their backs toward him, and each with a comb in his head, unconclously asked it boys and girls were educated together One of the natives of high rank was lately called to give evidence at a frial, and swore such complete falsehoods that he was imprisoned for perjury. He applied to the English government, and, with surprise, asked why he should be punished OF PROPERTY IN OREGON CITY. for what his people did "My father." he said, "was a liar, and my grandfather was a liar, and we are all llars. It is the custom of my country. Why should I be punished?

"Labor" says the Rev. Newman Hall. as a mighty magician, walks forth into a region untababited and waste; he looks curnestly on the scene, so quiet in its des olation; then waving his wonder working wand, those dreary valleys smile with golden harvest-those barren mountain sloves are clothed with foliage-the furwheels whirl round—the town appears—

We meet with this witty and who will also with this witty and meanswerable retort in a sketch of January 31st; 1873.—wi a short trip through a portion of Ireland. The writer is conversing with his car driver; "Are you a Catholic Jimmy? "Yes, yer honor," "And pray to the Virgin Mary?" "I do, yer honor." Well she was a good woman. The Bi- Saturday, the Ist day of March, 1813, ble says so. But she may have been no better than your mother or mine."
