OREGON CITY, OREGON, MARCH 25, 1874.

ON THE TOWN. The lamps are lighted, the streets are dark, and the moon is like a wavy line in the beautiful night; the stars are dim, but shrink into the moon's disc, and the moon's disc is like a wavy line in the beautiful night; the stars are dim, but shrink into the moon's disc, and the moon's disc is like a wavy line in the beautiful night...

When a woman has a hen to drive into the coop, she takes hold of her hoops with both hands, and shakes them quietly toward the delinquent, and says: "Shew! there." The hen takes one look at the object to convince herself that it is a woman, and then stalks majestically into the coop in perfect disgust of the sex. A man don't do that way. He goes out of doors and says, "It is singular nobody in this house can drive a hen but myself," and, picking up a stick of wood, hurls it at the offending biped, and observes, "Get in there, you thief." The hen immediately loses her reason and dashes to the opposite end of the yard...

A critic, speaking of a very tall actor said, "By Jove! he's tall enough to act in two parts!" Why is the man who does not bet as bad as the man who does? Because he is no better. Paymaster R. NEW that the terms of some of the members of Congress who were proved to have violated decency and honesty, have expired, it is proposed to pass a vote of expulsion. If this is not worse morally than any of Mr. Meacham's theories what could be? Mr. Patterson is no longer a member of the Senate, and now that high-toned body of fellows, so willering and ready to rob the United States Treasury of five thousand dollars each, who had not the moral bravery, or rather, the honesty necessary to come up to the standard of expelling members proved unworthy of the position they occupied, now that Patterson is out of the Senate and cannot come back upon them with accusations founded upon his knowledge of their shortcomings, they were left as a snatching flies, and as honest as so many crows after the hen-coop has been robbed and the fowls eaten, and talk wisely of trying the resolution for Patterson's expulsion from a body of which he is no longer a member. Could a false morality do anything more ridiculous? Could a false or assumed bravado do anything more cowardly? This action is a virtual acknowledgment that they failed in their duty in not having expelled him before his term expired in limitation.

The first condemnation by the people of the grand larceny committed by Congress on the Treasury of the United States, comes to us from New Hampshire. The Republicans having been elected in the majority in the Congress that turned free-borders, are responsible for the theft. And although, probably, the Democratic members were no more honest nor conscientious than their Republican associates, the latter must bear chiefly the opprobrium. They turned crack-brokers, broke into the Treasury, and helped themselves to $5,000 each, which not theirs; in other words, took it by force, committed a robbery which no argument can reconcile with honesty, or honor. Two members refused to receive this plunder. One received it, but upon second thought donated it for some benevolent purpose. The act was an acknowledgment that it did not belong to him. What right then had he to give that money, yours and ours—some portion of it—reader, to anybody, or for any purpose? He cannot "Whip the devil round the stump" by any such dodge as that. It was his, or it was not. If it was, why did he take it from the Treasury? New Hampshire has condemned this wholesale robbery by defeating the Republican candidate for Governor.

CREDIT MOBILIER.—ONE OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN'S JOKES.—The following anecdote has been reproduced to illustrate why the majority in Congress take no action against the corruption exhibited by the Credit Mobilier investigation. Mr. Lincoln had been retained as counsel for a fellow accused of stealing the fine goods. The trial came on and the witnesses for the State proved the theft beyond all question, and identified Mr. Lincoln's client as the thief. When the testimony had closed, Mr. Lincoln turned to the thief and said, "I see no ground for any defense in this case, sir. If the witnesses are to be believed, you are guilty, and I cannot make anything else out of it." "Never mind my guilt," said the confiding client, "let's get up and abuse them witnesses like the devil and spread yourself on general principles." Mr. Lincoln did as he was told. The jury retired, and in less than an hour, much to the surprise of Court and counsel, returned a verdict of "not guilty."

At Salem, in the case of the State of Oregon vs. Samuel E. May, Dowell and others, judgment was given by default against May and Kilgore, and the cases continued as to the others. This is for the purpose of taking evidence. This is an action for recovery on May's bond.

"THE REPUBLICAN PARTY," exclaims a Western Senator, "must be honored." We have had a good deal of preaching from that text. Suppose now we have a little practice?—New York Herald. A critic, speaking of a very tall actor said, "By Jove! he's tall enough to act in two parts!" Why is the man who does not bet as bad as the man who does? Because he is no better.
