It is surprising that so many peolive without taking thought of the morrow. Reckless expenditures to ensure ease for the present, seems to be the order of the day. With all the accomplishments of the young education which will enable them to enconomize in time of need! The girls' smattering of the languages skill at billiards; and thus the household expenditures suffer from the lack of an intelligent system of housekeeping, and the ignorance of the younger branches of the family, both on this point and the way to earn their own living. Isn't it high time that there should be a change in this respect? The chances and changes of business, and the uncertainties of investments, make sad havoe with the position of once well-to-do people, and find too many members of families anable to do anything to keep the wolf from the door. The same neglect of a sound and reasonable education, preing men from helping to bear the load which presses so heavily. How many good housekeepers are there among either the upper or middle classes who can, by careful management, so reduce their expenses as to tide over dull times, and in bright days have a surplus ready for the savings bank? This is a practical question to which our household Although the cost of fiving has largeof years, it is still possible by the exercise of judicious economy and foresight, to provide for the needs of the ramy day.
