The boys are catching trout in large numbers in the streams near this city. Messrs. Barin and Pope, who went to Clear creek recently, bagged over one hundred of the speckled beauties. We can't swear to the number, as they failed to call around at this office.

A rumor with a good deal of truth in it circulates that E. S. Kearney and H. W. Scott have purchased the controlling interest of H. W. Corlett in the Daily Oregonian, and that Mr. Scott will assume the editorial charge of that journal next Monday, vice W. L. Hill, Esq., who retires—Standard.

Mr. John E. Folsom will stand his fine young stallion, Black Cloud, at the following places during the season: E. B. Lewellen's, Springwater, Oreg. Co.; Henry McCluskey's, and at his farm, Clatsop Co. Black Cloud is one of the finest stallions we have seen in the county, and our farmers will do well to give Mr. Folsom a cordial invitation to visit.

There is something refreshing in the absolute astonishment that visitors to a printing office sometimes display at commonest things. "What is that black-looking thing standing up in that corner?" is sometimes asked by an unsophisticated observer; and the nearest by answers: "That is the printing-office towel. We always stand it up in the corner."

BURGERS AROUND.—A burglar called at the residence of Mr. Chas. Albright last Sunday night. He had raised the window and was climbing in when Mr. Albright pulled aside the curtain. He would not be interviewed and made himself scarce without any ceremony. A good dose of shot will await his next visit.

Ringo's Point.

RINGO'S POINT, March 21, 1877.

EDITOR ENTERPRISE:—As I have never seen any communication from this section of Clackamas county, I thought it might not be amiss to drop you these few lines in regard to our community, and things generally.

Ringo's Point is a section of country near the Cascade range of mountains, located on the north by Clear creek, and on the south by Milk creek, making a ridge between the streams for a distance of about seven miles, varying in width from five to ten miles, comprising some of the best lands in the county. The soil is dry and rather coarse, of a dark red, duff color, and a clay foundation, with few stones and no gravel, making it without a doubt one of the finest fruit countries in the world, for all fruits with the exception of grapes. It also produces a fine quality of fall wheat, but any other section of Clackamas county. For proof I will state that Mr. A. Stout informed me the other day that he raised last season from 20 acres 35 bushels per acre, and from 24 acres he raised 40 bushels per acre.

There will be one fourth more grain raised in this section this season than in any previous year, as there has been quite a little to see who could have the largest oak cleared. Mr. A. L. Baty has grubbed cleared and has just finished seeding it to wheat, from which he expects to reap from 40 to 50 bushels per acre.

Mr. D. Trullinger told me to-day that he has cleared 20 acres, and expects to finish it by the 1st of April. He has done this year, and has just finished seeding it to wheat, from which he expects to reap from 40 to 50 bushels per acre.

Mr. L. Likewise, a German who came from the Portland last week, bought a tract of land for which he paid four hundred dollars. All of his neighbors said he had a bargain, and predicted that he would not be able to get it for less than $1000 in a year.

In the last eight months he has cleared forty acres, which is now sown to wheat and peas. He has also cleared and is getting out timbers to build a house. As he is a good center and can do the work, he has sold an acre to a neighbor. His farm is now worth over a thousand dollars.

Mr. J. Trullinger is building a fine grist mill on Milk creek, at Union Mills. He will have it finished in time for this crop.

M. G. WILKS.

PORTLAND VISITORS.

The early part of last week a dashing young lady from Portland took up her quarters at the Cliff House.

She told the story of a cruel father, who had whipped her for going out riding with her lover, a baronet, named Howard, and she had run off—never giving her money to pay her board.

The young lady seemed perfectly at home, and made sad havoc with the hearts of some of our young men.

Thursday the Portland young man, accompanied by three friends, all well soaked with tangle-foot, arrived in carriage with the intention of carrying off his lady love.

The young lady objected on account of his "tangled state," and would have nothing to do with him. The quartette made things howl around the hotel for a while, but at last retired to a saloon to indulge in a little more of the Oh-be-joyful. The fair but faithless one donned her best attire and went to see the Tennessee Jubilee troupe with an Oregon City man.

When they returned to the hotel, Howard met them on the steps and wanted that board money refunded, and proceeded to catch the girl by the throat, and would have used her as a foot-stool.

But soon the unfeeling Portlanders returned to battle again, and raised the devil for a while, but were at length persuaded to retire. They returned to the Barnum Saloon, where they raised another row, and were about to be arrested, when they jumped into the carriage, which was standing at the door, and left town as fast as possible.

The young lady returned to her home at East Portland next morning. We are always glad to have Portland visitors, but hope they will be of a different character hereafter.

DROWNED.—Just as we are going to press we receive the sad intelligence that Mr. Chas. Pope, who accompanied L. T. Barin on a fishing expedition up the Clackamas, was drowned yesterday afternoon.

They had a boat hauled out to Barin's place, where it was placed in the river, and they started down the stream. Yesterday afternoon, while coming down the raging stream, the boat struck a snag and sank.

Mr. Pope was the only one who was killed through, when they concluded to try and make the shore. Barin managed to get the boat safely ashore, and was looking around for Mr. Pope, he was not to be seen—"he had passed over the river."

The only one who was recovered, and recovered. Mr. Pope leaves a wife and four children to mourn his loss. The grief-stricken family have the sympathy of the entire community in this their sad affliction.
