

OREGON CITY, THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1877.

Dried Fruit.

The commercial editor of the New York Tribune acquaints us with the glad tidings that Europe is now taking a surprising quantity of American fruit, purchases amounting to over $2,200,000 worth since last June, compared with $600,000 in the same period in the year before.

The number of fruit dryers in the State is very few considering our immense yield of apples, pears and plums and the golden opportunity offered us by the quarrel of the Turks and Russians.

Pooh, Pooh!

The silly season in journalism has fairly set in in company with the thermometric wave in the atmosphere, the talons of the sea serpent, the Telegram's bogus eloquence and Tennessee showers of underdone beefsteak are now in order.

If this be the reform indicated by the wholesale discharges of the clerks, it is a real reform. But if the clerks are merely discharged because the appropriations are insufficient, and if the public service is starved while the remaining clerks dawdle away one half their time, there is small consolation in the examining committees or in the weeding out of families.

Gold and Coin.

It is a cheerful sign that President Hayes speaks not of gold, but of "coin." The West will not surrender the latter for the former, and leading Republicans in that section are emphatic in their declarations for this distinction.

Settlers will find good Government land in Coos county, between Coos Bay and the Umpqua river.

Reform at Washington.

The success of the Republican ticket in the Presidential election materially smoothed the difficulties in the way of increasing the efficiency and economy of the public service, and the people have been watching with a great deal of interest the successive steps which mark the progress of reform.

Another rule which is not likely to receive much favor is that which forbids more than one member of a family receiving employment. This rule is directly adverse to the principle on which any proposition of reform must be based—namely, that tenure of office must depend solely on fitness.

But these are minor points of little consequence one way or the other; if they do little good, they are likely to do much harm; and, as representing a series of bloody encounters which have rendered portions of the South, ever since their settlement, a disgrace to civilization.

The Assassination in Mississippi.

There have been various versions of the massacre at DeKalb, Mississippi, Sunday, April 29, resulting in the killing of Gilmer, McLelland, and a son of Judge Chisholm, and the severe wounding of the latter and of his daughter.

Mart Taylor, the "mudly-married" showman, was married last week at Pendleton to Miss M. Strong. The fool caterer failed to get his eye on that woman.

Baker Democrat: One of the great wants of Baker county is a good flouring mill. As it is there is only one for this State, where crops never fail.

A Key to the War.

The reader of the war dispatches is not supposed to have a minute knowledge of the names and localities of the many persons and places mentioned, nor can he always have before him a map from which to gain the desired information.

Armed to the Teeth.

Is a very common expression, but we think that armed to the teeth and preserved them to a rich old man, lately deceased, who had a collection of arms and accoutrements, which he had sold to a drugist.

State News.

W. J. Hill, of Lane county, has 1,200 acres in wheat. The Kinney Brothers average putting up 48,000 one-pound cans of salmon every day.

Fall wheat standing over six feet high is reported in several sections of the State. Mr. J. H. Foster is enlarging the Magnolia mills at Albany, preparatory for the immense crop of 1877.

Judge Kerr, of Contra Costa, Cal., is looking out for a location in this State, where he has a band of 6,000 sheep on route for this State, where crops never fail.

An unknown disease is carrying off sheep in Douglas county. Jeff Green has lost one hundred. The sheep are fat and die quickly after being taken with the disease.
