Chinese Immigration.

The House Committee on Education and Labor have submitted a report on the Chinese immigration question which discusses the question with unusual impartiality. The lowest estimate places the number of Chinese on this coast at 150,000, and the rate of increase has been very rapid; 6,691 having arrived since the 1st of June, 1877. The passage can be made so cheaply, the price having dropped under competition from $50 to $12, that those who wish to come can do so without trouble, particularly as brokers stand ready to pay the passage money, securing its repayment by a mortgage contract on the coolie's wages. There is no likelihood that under the present system the number of arrivals will ever decrease, and the prospect of a swarm of Mongolians spread over the entire Pacific slope is here, or promising to the nation.

The report lays special stress on the fact that these Chinese immmigrants do not assimilate with our people, nor become citizens. They form a solid class by themselves and are practically impervious to American influences. Their presence is therefore demoralizing. There are other reasons why these people are undesirable as immigrants, but these are the chief reasons, and they are sufficient It may be urged, on the other hand, that we do nothing to Americanize these coolies; that they are treated as interlopers; that they are frowned upon as a pest and pelted with prejudices first and brickbats afterwards. If they ask for religion, they get stones; and if they apply for education they are driven off as vagabonds, The treatment of Chinese by the "hoodlums" on this Coast has been, undeniably, disgraceful. But this does not obliterate the fact that they are an undesirable element of population, and their coming ought to be discouraged, if it is not stopped altogether. The committee argues that as the Chinese Government is opposed to emigration, there will be no difficulty in putting a check to it, especially as most of the immigrants come from Hong Kong, and recommend that the President be requested to open immediate correspondence with the Chinese and British Governments with a view to putting a stop to "the unlimited immigration of the Chinese to the United States." This course looks plausible, and if wisely carried out may put an effectual check upon the growing difficulty.

Croakers are as plentiful in Oregon as the Biblical frogs. They say we want more capital to lubricate the machinery of advancement or we are ruined. Pshaw! We want more men at the plow, and fewer hanging around city billiard rooms. That mysterious and long-talked-of document-Watkinds' resignation-has at last been given to the public by the author, for his own vindication, and it will now be in order for Gov. Chadwick to come to the front and explain.

Six years ago last September you ap pointed and commissioned me to the office of superintendent of the Oregon State penitentiary. At that time the after thanking you for the confidence reposed in me in conferring a position of so great importance to your administration and to the people of the State of Oregon to my keeping, I said to you that my management of the penitentiary should be no disgrace to your administration. How well I have kept my promise I leave you and the great commonwealth of Oregon to judge.

since 1870 committees have been appointed to convict and not to try me of some dishonest transaction. So far they have failed, as may be seen by referring to the reports of the committees at each session of the general assembly. The first four years of the management of the State prison was very expensive to the taxpayers compared with the last three years but they must bear in mind has been turned over to the State treasury and State buildings, to say nothing of the vast improvements of a perma nent character made on the prison grounds. A new penitentiary has been built second to none in the United States for safety, durability, health and convenience. WASHINGTON, D. C., March 1, '78. Everybody is happy here now that we have remonetized silver. But as one of our ablest advocates of such policy utters a warning voice that the passage of the bill will not give the people out completion of the main line of the N.P. west, who put up their hands in hopes of catching big white dollars, all they wish of them, we fancy those he addresses will be so disappointed as not throws all the lands open to settlement to share our happiness. Each is glad the end has come, and that now the country will drift into the experiment, no matter whether it be for good or for evil, and, in so far as we have observed, only the extremists are dissatisfied, yet as all combined to override the President's veto, we presume all will acquiesce in the result and test the problem involved. We were somewhat surprised at Mr. Hayes' action, as it has seemed to the politicians generally that he would not put himself on the record against the undoubted two thirds which sent the bill to him. We presume, like President Johnson, he must have his say, whether or no, and doubtless, as always was the case with Mr. Johnson, he feels the better for it, though his veto was not of course induced by that inherent beligerency which seemed naturally to make Mr. Johnson spoil for a fight. The House resolved itself at once the amount of money and labor that into a bedlam of confusion as soon as the Speaker announced the President's Portland shall be a common road for veto, and it was greatly intensified by Sunset Cox claiming the message was "a charge of fraud by a fraud," for the Republicans rose to repel the imputation while the Democrats cheered lustily for their quondam hero. When order was restored the members soon gave the veto a black eye, for they made no delay in overriding it. Then came a general stampede of the members for the Senate, as each wanted to see how our dignified Solons would treat it. Even Sam Randall left the Speaker's chair and joined among the interested spectators admitted to the floor. But so speedily and summarily was the bill passed over the veto that many were disappointed in missing the tilla within six months after the date of the feverish days of the good times? vation. Mr. Evarts shook hands cordially with each caller when he was announced at the door, but his face wore an appearance of weariness and tiredness as if he were bored out of all patience by the task; yet standing near him was Mrs. Evarts whose bright smile and fresh hearty manner of receiving made the guest feel at once at home. The wives of the various diplomats were present, but the diminutive consort of the Japanese minister attracted most attention. She was arranged in richly figured silk of oriental design, with full train, which, with her extreme small eyes, necessarily rendered her the object of general notice. She, however, seemed as much at ease as the grandly attired and beautiful wife of the Spanish minister, whose regal toilette and bearing seemingly placed her at the front of fashion and accomplishments. Eastern. WASHINGTON, March 16 .- The subcommittee of the Senate railroad committee to-day made a unanimous report to the full committee in favor of Senator Mitchell's bill extending the time for railroad to eight years. The bill as amended compels the company to build on the south side of the Columbia river to Portland and Kalama, W. T. It proceeds to be paid into the U.S. treasury, and by the secretary of the treastions of the road are completed and accepted by the government, then the secretary of the treasury shall pay directly to the company the proceeds of all lands designated by odd sections adjacent to the completed road in which pre-emption acts are not attached to the company, with restrictions they shall be sold in quantities not exceeding 160 acres to one person, at not exceeding 22 50 per acre. The bill also provides for the protection of settlers now on the lands. The even sections are thrown open to homesteaders, 160 acres to each person. It also permits those who have been restricted to 80 acres under existing laws to enlarge their claims to 160 acres. The extension is on the express condition that the N. P. railroad company shall commence the construction of their road at Portland within nine months after the date of the passage of the act, and construct at least thirtythree miles within one year thereafter on the south side of the Columbia river and that each year thereafter the company builds one hundred miles of road, at least twenty-five of which shall be on the Pacific coast. The bill further provides that the road from Umatilla to the use of the Northern Pacific and Salt Lake and South Pass companies under such terms as they may agree, and in the event of a failure to agree, such terms as may be agreed upon by three persons selected by the President of the United States. The extension does not extend to the branch line across the Cascade mountains, but lands on the branch amounting to seven million acres are restored to the public domain, and in lieu of these lands an equal amount is granted the Portland, Salt Lake and South Pass company in aid of a road from Umatilla to Salt Lake with like restrictions as to the sale of lands by the government, and on condition that the company shall commence at Umaeach succeeding year, and the whole

He lectured this evening at St. Patrick's Hall to an audience of about 150. The streets and vicinity were crowded by a mob. Five ompanies of the Queen's Own and four of the Tenth Royals were mustered quietly in the drill shed a hundred vards from the hall, The moment gas was turned on in the hall the mob outside opened fire with stones, and a perfect shower was rained in the windows until the theatre closed at 9:30. Not pane of glass was left. Rossa stopped several times, and one of the audience proposed they should charge down stairs and out. This was overruled. and the audience waited in darkness for the mob to disperse. At 10:15 Rossa with revolvers and the rioters returned the fire. Hundreds of shots were exchanged and stones poured into the hotel. The window sashes and furniture were completely demolished. The police 90 strong charged the mob and wielded their batons with great vigor. Four men were shot, one, it is feared, fatally. Meantime another mob a thousand strong opened fire with stones on Collins' tavern further up Queen street, where Rossa was believed to be. Revolvers were used, but the police, fighting with matchless pluck against enormous odds, cleared the track. Rossa was driven out of town at 11 o'clock. Probably 150 of the rioters were injured with stones and batons. Most all of the police were more or less injured. Hundreds of roughs are still congregated in gangs in the lanes and back streets, and the police are parading the streets in force.
