WAS IT WISE?

We very much doubt the wisdom of the city council in refusing to confirm Robert Hughes for night watch. Whatever may have been their motives, it was not shown that his rejection was for cause, other than that assigned by the public, namely a political one. While the marshalship, which is an office of but little financial worth, is an elective one, and the office of night watch an appointive position, precedent has pretty well established in the mind of the public the feeling that they shall belong together, and in voting for marshal they have a night watch in mind as much if not more than the position filled by votes. In the present instance the fight was made at the polls, and Hughes having been elected to the non-paying office should have been confirmed for the other position, unless he was rejected for cause outside of party politics. The precedent, for such it is, can not be called a good one. Only once within the history of the city have these offices been separated, and then C. N. Greenman was elected to the one and refused to have the other.

NOT APPLICABLE NOW.

Under the heading "A sample pioneer mossback," and the sub-head, "Portland does not contain them all nor does Oregon City, the Sunday Welcome describes the pioneer Eldridge of Whatcom, W. T.

During the '58 excitement, the Pacific Mail Steamship company wanted to purchase from the early settler in question some water front property on which to build a wharf, but imagining his land had become of great value since so wealthy a corporation wanted it, he sent the price up as high as a shot tower, and the P. M. company built its docks at Esquimalt. A few years after, Eldridge sold this identical piece of water front property to a fellow mossback for a shotgun; gave the fowling piece to his son, and with it the boy eventually killed himself. Eldridge's imagining that his property had undue value because someone offered to buy it, reminds us not a little of the old snails at Oregon City who own certain unused portions of the water power there. Today the price asked for this property is nominal, but tomorrow, if a man were to go there intending to put up a factory of some kind the owners would value it at a figure so high as to be almost beyond the reach of a millionaire.

The part that applies to this place to this place has only been too true in the past, but is so no longer The men who now have control of the water power, offer free land to builders of factories, free power for ten years. There is nothing mossbackish about this. Oregon City will redeem her record.

IS IT AVAILABLE, SIR?

In a former article which we published in regard to the road problem Mr. Myers discovers a sore upon the farmer, and officially proclaims his plan "available sir." In the article in question the conclusions were based upon the dominant elements of human nature, which is actuated by the same motives whether on the farm, in the store or in the workshops; thus, Farmer Myers is no different in his feelings or his principles from the merchant, or if he be different at what particular point between his store and his farm is he transmogrified from the merchant into the slurred farmer? Having pronounced his plan "available sir," he knocks us down with the statement that "one farmer will haul 100 loads of rock."

From the top of the hill to Mr. Myer's place is not less than a mile, or 5280 feet. A road to be substantial should be built of rock 1 foot in depth and 16 feet wide. This would require, allowing 8 cubic feet to the load, just two loads of rock to the lineal foot of road, or 10,560 loads to the mile. One hundred loads would make three rods and half a foot of road. Or to make a mile of road would require 105 farmers to haul 100 loads each, or if Mr. Myers wishes to build the road with his own team, allowing four loads as an average day's work and 300 days to the year he could in eight years and nine months get a good road to his place.

The Labor Review exhibits its level head in these remarks:

It is our sincere prayer that the good Lord would deliver us from the brainless agitator of the labor question. By his inflamatory and bombastical speeches he does our noble cause more harm than good. When level-headed men of thought and judgment meet to discuss the adverse condition of the industrial classes, and to devise a reasonable remedy for the same, there you will find him in the midst of them, cocked and primed, and ready to go off at a moment's notice, discharging volley after volley of flashey, insipid nonsense to the disgust of his hearers. His favorite topics are: The bloated bondholders, the grinding monopoiist' and the greedy manufacturer. These he denounces wholesale and retail, without any discrimination, as so many agencies existing for the special purpose of defrauding and blasting the lives of the working people.

In Boston, on the 15th, inst. died the man to whom is due the credit of inaugerating the first reduction in letter postage in this country, Lysander Spooner. His manner of inducing the government to adopt cheaper rates was by starting a opposition route, and was characteristic of the man. He had reached the advanced age of eighty-one years at the time of his death. When he started his mail route letter postage from Boston to New York was 12½ cents, and he carried the letters for five cents. The department succeeded in litigating him out of the business, but congress raised the letter postage at the next session, so his object was attained.

An Oregon City Girl.

ADAPTED BY ONE OF THE BOYS.

She riseth not with the sun, neither goeth she down with the same. She raiseth herself up when the sun is nearing his zenith. She arrayeth herself in her "Mother Hubbard" and adorneth her head with last week's newspaper. She goeth forth and eateth her breakfast and then she readeth a paper-backed novel till the mail cometh in. She then girdeth up her bustle and goeth upon the street. If she receiveth a letter from 'him whom her soul loveth best," she goeth straightway to her home and readeth it; perchance sheddeth a few tears over it and kisseth it. But if she receiveth a letter from him whom she careth not for, but who loveth her, she carryeth it over to her chum's and there readeth it aloud, much to the amusement of the girls whom she findeth there.

She goeth to Sunday school and talketh to the boys around the stove, and keepeth them from studying their lessons, and tryeth to get some one to ask to take her to preaching that night. During the sermon she "maketh eyes" at the pious young men in the back seats.

If a ball is gotten up, she goeth forth and danceth till the sun riseth in the morning. She then goeth to her bed and is sick "nigh unto death." Her pastor heareth of it and goeth to see her. She maketh a promise that she will not dance any more—she meaneth "until the next time."

If a young man goeth to see her, she meeteth him at the door, and turning her quid of chewing-gum, she smileth and sayeth, "come in." She keepeth him talking till the "wee sma' hours." Then she letteth him depart, after she maketh him promise to "come again soon," when she is not in such a hurry.

She never goeth above the age of seventeen, and seldom getteth married.

The Labor Party.

The Commercial Advertiser publishes the following: It is already stated on very good authority that the Henry George labor party has already begun to prepare for the fall campaign in New York. District leaders, with their assistants, are making a house to house canvass in the tenement districts, and are said to be largely recruiting their ranks from lukewarm democrats. It has been intimated that the object of the whole affair is to swell the labor vote in the approaching election to such an extent that George could then be in a position to make a profitable deal with Blaine in the presidential election of 1888. George this morning said: "You authoritatively deny that there is any deal or agreement, either past pending or to be made in the future, between Mr. Blaine and myself. I am opposed to Blaine. He represents all I have been fighting against for years in monopoly and the worst form of capitalistic power."

"Will there be a labor presidental candidate in 1888?"

"It is strongly probable that there will," answered George.

NEW ERA

Growing crops look well.

The weather is all that could be desired.

Farmers and gardeners are nearly through planting.

The temperance people are working lively for the amendment, and many who would not vote for the third party will vote for the amendment, as no conscientious person who is in favor of the suppression of one of the great evils could do otherwise.

The prohibition club organized before the last election, is still holding its regular meetings which are well attended.

The Spiritualists are erecting a large tabernacle on their beautiful grounds which will be ready for use by the time of their first meeting which will begin June 23. Mr. J. H. Ewing is the contractor.

Messrs Maddock, Phelps and Thomas Blanchard are putting up a large building with a cellar for potatoes etc,

Thos. Pinnell has just erected an addition to his house which will be quite a convenience to Father Noyer, who will hereafter make his home with Mr. Pinnell.

The Bennett sawmill near here is a great convenience to this place, as lumber can be had cheap and of the best quality.

Mr. G. W. Vetito is the only invalid in the neighborhood and his numerous friends are in hopes that as the warm weather comes on his health will be better.

The friends of temperance will hold a picnic at this place on June 11. There will be good speakers in attendance. All are invited.

Business is brisk and all are happy.

HICKEY.

MARMOT

This is the third week of school. Department is quite good, and average daily attendance of 11. Thirteen pupils are enrolled.

With the exception of colds health is generally good.

The farmers are about done sowing their grain and are planting potatoes.

Meadows are doing well. The cool wet spring has been favorable to the growing of grass and the present crop promises to be abundant.

Fall and spring sown grain seems to be in excellent condition. A. J. MOODIE.

The Remains of Ex-Governor Gibbs.

The duty of escorting the remains of the late Ex-Governor Gibbs to this state for interment has been delegated to Dr. Watkins of this city by Governor Pennoyer. The doctor is a brother-in-law of the late ex-govenor and will take a personal interest in the execution of the commission, which renders his appointment a most fitting one. He will start East in a few days and proceed as far as New York, arrangements having already been made for the proper transfer of the remains from London to that city.—Telegram.

MODEL FARM.—The other evening we were passing through Mt. Pleasant and turned aside to call upon W. B. Partlow. From the school house to his place, about half a mile, is as fine a piece of road as one could wish to ride over. Its condition was but an introductory to his farm, which is a model of neatness, and order. Not a stray stick or loose stone lies about. Well latched gates and good fences protect farm, garden and orchard. The bees and chickens are in adjoining buildings and are obedient to the regulations of their master. We did not see the rows of corn and potatoes but are inclined to believe they would blush to be crooked. Within the house Mrs. Partlow has every thing the neatest, and such plants! Fragrant geraniums grown almost to trees, and every thing betokening the best of care. But we must not fail to mention Mr. Partlow's especial pet, a fine ball four years old. This animal is not registered, yet he has all the marks of the thorough bred short horn, and is a much finer animal than many that are booked. Without being at all fat he gets seven feet and over. He is of good milking stock, and his value would be incalculable to a stock man. We can not better describe the farm than by saying that it is a typical New England home with the all its surroundings in perfect order.

FIRE BUG CAUGHT.—Last night about twelve o'clock E. B. Clements discovered a fire in the rear of Jack Trembath's saloon. It proved to be the barn which contained Jack's fine colt. Buckets were obtained and the blaze extinguished just in time. Evidences of incendiarism were plain, coal oil and pitch being placed against the north end. Geo. Price a brother-in-law of J. H. Mitchel was put off the train here yesterday, and the evidence points very strongly to him as the incendary. He was arrested by night watch Connor and lodged in jail.

—OSWEGO SUIT.—Justice Straight's court was busy yesterday and the day before trying suits from Oswego. The first suit was against E. K. Worthington for assault with intent to kill; placed under bonds for $200. Second suit was against J. Myers for assault and battery; plead guilty and fined $10. Third suit against Clara Hanson; acquitted and costs charged to complaining witness. These suits all grew out of a drunken fight Sunday engaged in by all three parties and Mrs. Myers. The three were a badly battered crowd.

A FISH STORY.—Fish biting? Well we should just say so. How is this for one day at the island? The record was kept by Charman Bros, who are keeping a list of the catch for the week. C. Babcock 11, L. T. Bairn 7, Thos. Brown 4, W. T. Whitlock 3, W. T. Burney 3, Hendrickson 3, A. W. Howard 2, W. E. Pratt 2, Rizenstine 1, Geo. Brown 2, By strangers 4, making a catch of 42 for the day. They ranged in weight from two to fifteen pounds.

THE NATION'S LAWMAKERS.—The house of representatives will be described by Z. L. White in the American Magazine for June, with portraits and sketches of prominent Congressmen, under the heading of "The Nation's Lawmakers."

Governor Larrabee, in a letter replying to inquiries as to the working of prohibition in Iowa, says that in eighty out of the ninety-nine counties of the State prohibition is enforced, and in the remaining nineteen counties it is partly enforced; that no property has been depreciated by abolishing the saloons, their places being filled by better and more legitimate business; and that the only effect upon the population has been the removal from the State of some incorrigible dispensers, and, perhaps, some incurable consumers. The Governor believes that public sentiment is strengthening in favor of prohibition, and that it is an established power in Iowa. It should be remembered, in contemplating this happy result, that Iowa has the immense advantage in dealing with the liquor question of having no large cities, only three cities of over 20,000 population being found in the state.

A new variety of pressed brick, made of ashes and cinders, is now being manufactured in San Francisco. Says the Examiner of that city: "The result is a brick of unusual solidity, handsome in appearance, of a most durable character and made entirely without burning or baking. All manner of experiments have been tried with the bricks in the way of subjecting them alternately to intense cold and heat, but without any injurious effect The best quality have been boiled for hours, without cracking or showing any signs of dissolving."

The name of a village in Wales containing seventy-two letters and twenty-two syllables is Llanfairpwllgwngvllgerrobgllgerchwyrnbyllgogerbwllzanttsilliogogogen, and its meaning is literally: "St. Mary's white hazel pool, near the turning pool, near the whirlpool, very near the pool of Llantsilio fronting on the rock islet of Gogo."

The hardest fought campaign in twenty-four years was waged against Blaine in 1884, when he was defeated by only 1000 votes, yet the democracy say he is the easiest man in the republican party to beat. Just match him for another heat and see if the "satisfied" democrats will run with their coats on.

The house of Confucius, built 600 years before Christ, was recently burned, and with it a collection of relics of the philosopher which cannot be replaced. The house had been occupied by an unbroken line of the family of Confucius for nearly 2500 years.

There is a popular impression abroad, says the Alta, that the operation of the Restriction Act has not very largely reduced the Chinese population of this coast. Without adverting to the influences that have generated this belief, the records kept at the Custom House and the books of the steamship companies show that it is very erroneous. The Custom House records disclose that since the passage of the Restriction Act up to December 31, 1886, the number of Chinese departing from this port to China was 48,678. During the same period the arrivals number 25,412, showing an excess of departures over arrivals of 23,270. This is far from representing the actual decrease of the Chinese on this coast, however, for neither the deaths nor the Eastern emigration is taken into consideration.

The World says: It now turns out that the United States is not such a great nation of topers as several of its neighbors who pretend to be in a high state of civilization and culture. The consumption of all kinds of liquors, distilled, vinous and malt, in the United States is 12 gallons per head a year, against 24 in Germany, 34 in Great Britain and 38 in France.

The Sunday school has recently been organized for the summer.

Elder Weddle preached a sermon on the amendment last Sunday.

A well known young man with a name that would remind you of him who extracted the first electric fluid from the clouds, was eager to show his girl how to milk. After seating himself by that cow with a switching tail, the "tormenting naratine" was secured to the milker's leg; then the extracting of the lacteal fluid was begun in a business like manner. The old cow gave a wink, three kicks and a bawl, and spun the would be milker about the corral, knocking over rotton stumps and plowing up a rich garden with his elbows. Finally the cow went on one side of a sapling and the young man staid with the bush and the tail staid with his leg. The cow went on with a determination never to be milked again by a beau. After the milk pail was removed from the young man's head, and a temporary post mortem examination held, it was declared that no bones were broken, except the cow's tail. After regaining his footing, this man of lightning declared that it was the only act of his life he was ashamed of. Nothing has been seen of the young lady since.

The Face.

The care of the complexion has become an accomplishment that no lady of refined tastes can afford to ignore, and in leading society circles it claims as much thought as do the fashions. It is an acknowledged fact that the variations of our climate are very severe on the complexion, noticeable by a roughness and dryness of the skin, and to counteract this effect it becomes necessary to call in the aid of art. In the selection of this agent too much care cannot be exercised. It is well known to chemists that many of the so-called "Blooms," "Balms," "Creams" etc., contain lead and other poisonous substances, the long continued use of which is dangerous. The new toilet preparation, Wisdom's Robertine, is guaranteed under a forfeiture of $1000 to be absolutely free from poisonous substance If you have not yet tried it, do so at once, and be one of the hundreds who pronounce it the most delightful toilet article ever produced. Wisdom's Robertine is sold at fifty cents per bottle, by Charman Bros, City Drug Store, Oregon City, Oregon, who give a beautiful picture card with every bottle.

The Effects of Mental Exhaustion.

Many diseases, especially those of the nervous system, are the products of daily renewed mental exhaustion. Business avocations often involve an amount of mental wear and tear very prejudicial to physical health and the professions, if arduously pursued are no less destructive to brain and nerve tissue. It is one of the most important attributes of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters that it compensates for this undue loss of tissue, and thus it imparts new energy to the brain and nerves. The rapidity with which it renews weakened mental energy and physical vitality is remarkable and shows that its invigorating properties are of the highest order. Besides increasing vital stamina, and counteracting the effect of mental exhaustion, this potential medicine cures and prevents fever and ague, rheumatism, chronic dyspepsia and constipation, kidney and uterine weakness and other complaints. Physicians recommend it as a medical stimulant and remedy.
