TURKISH WOMEN. msible Beings Who Are as Generous Irrespo and Stovenly as Children. Turkish women are utterly irresponsible beings in their husbands' eyes, and they are treated in most ways like little children-provided for comfortably, fed, clothed and amused, but not educated. While naturally docile and intelligent, they become shrewish through the ignorance in which they are kept. They are generous with that unthinking generosity that causes a child to give away the most expensive toy, not knowing the cost. A Turkish woman will at any time, if the caprice seizes her, give away her fine jewels. Their hospitality is too well known to require men-5 00 tion. They always have coffee and sweetmeats served for any and all guests, and when they feel that the visit has lasted long enough they clap hands and the caffeejee brings a second cup of coffee, and that is the signal. No guest can stay longer than to drink this. Sometimes the time between drinks is decidedly short. The women and the children do not undress at night, but add a wadded night robe to the clothes they already have on and sleep thus, summer and winter. They close all the doors and windows, and sleep several in one room and doubtless would suffer dreadfully from the confined air were it not that Turkish carpenters never have heard of the plumb-line, and so windows and doors all have crevices, which supply ventilation. The tales of oriental magnificence fail to impress 71 one who has visited the best harems, 10 6 1 00 for they are one and all pictures of dirt and wanton extravagance. The only great display is in the amount of 1 25 @ 1 50 rugs and jewelry. On the floors of the general room for the women, or the private suites, it is all the same-cigarette ends, candies, nutshells, necklaces, gold-embroidered slippers and sashes, and, in short, all sorts of disorder and dirt. And the women are always eating, smoking, or lolling about on the divans .- Brooklyn Magazine.

Though the Minister is not a frequent entertainer himself, he is always ready to put his house at the disposal of the society ladies of Washington. Every season, however, he gives a grand ball, for which over a thousand invitations are issued. The last occasion of this kind is still fresh in the public mind, on account of the behavior of the guests. There is still another apartment well worth liggering in. This is the smoking-room -that heaven of the Celestial of every degree. It is inxuriously furnished with divans and mats and sofas and rugs of every conceivable design and color. There is not much regard for taste; comfort seems to be the object sought after and certainly gained. In a large and curious cabinet you will be shown a strange and varied collection of pipes. It is a little museum in itself in the matter of smokers' goods. I thought I saw a substance that looked like opium, bat I wont be certain of it. The smoking-room is the general lounging place of the house.
