Our Consumption of Raisins.

The United States is the largest raisin consuming country in the world, and trustworthy authorities estimate the consumption at about 2,000,000 boxes of twenty-two pounds each, which, at an average of $2 per box, shows an expenditure of $4,000,000 per annum for one dried fruit.—Once a Week.

The Tooth Brush for Children.

In many homes a tooth brush would be a curiosity, and yet every child should be provided with one and made to use it. This is a duty which cannot be too strongly insisted upon. Unless the teeth are kept clean they will decay, and without good teeth perfect health is absolutely impossible.—London Herald.

Leaves of the Palm.

A tribe in the palm region of the Amazon cradles the young in palm leaves. A single leaf turned up around the edges by some native process makes an excellent cradle and sow and then it is made to [illegible] of a lath suit.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Just as Bad.

Many who would not for the world utter a falsehood are yet eternally scheming to produce false impressions on the minds of others respecting facts, characters and opinions.

"Kine Cure" for Consumptives.

The odor of cows and cow stables is thought to have a curative effect upon consumptives. A hospital for this "kine cure" is about to be opened at Reinickendorf, near Berlin. The sanatorium proper consists of a vast circular building, in the basement of which several hundred cows will be kept, and the odor of the stables be conducted to the rooms in the upper stories. In the center of the building is a large yard, for which a whey cure, bathing establishments, etc., are planned. The surplus of the dairy products is to be disposed of to the public under proper precautions.—Home Journal.

Curious Treatment of Hydrophobia.

I recently met a gentleman of high educational attainments, who stated that, in six years' residence in the East Indies, he had known of three severe cases of hydrophobia, and that each case was permanently cured. The means used was to take the patient to a pool or stream of water, plunge him in and allow him to just about drown and then resuscitate him him. In each case, as before stated, a permanent cure was effected.—"W. T. G." in Scientific American.

How Clowns "Make Up."

How do clowns make up their faces? I will tell you. They take oxide-chloride of bismuth, which they mix with grease, rub upon their hands until the composition is thorough, when it is put upon the face like the burned cork of the negro minstrel. After that, common chalk, carefully dried, is laid on a second coat. The chalk adheres to the greasy skin, and the face is soon very thoroughly whitened.—Clown in Globe-Democrat.

Russia's Horses and Boots.

In Moscow, as well as everywhere in Russia, the horses are very fine and very fast. They have the build of race horses, with their slim legs and far reaching necks. Even some of the droskies have full blooded horses, and their drivers are able to obtain a fancy price for their use. Horses and boots are the two things that Russians seem to pride themselves upon. They may not have any stockings—and few of the lower classes wear them at all—but boots they must have and will have. Boots with high morocco tops, and worn with the pantaloons tucked into the tops, so that every inch shows; and then, like the Mexican with his spurs, they are dressed.—Henry M. Wright in Detroit Free Press.
