A LIBERAL OFFER. Weekly Subscribers Take Notice

To all who pay up their subscriptions to the Weekly Statesman, within six months from the commencement of the year, we shall send as a present for one year, the American Stock Journal, a standard magazine, devoted to the interests of farmers. Remember, that the year commenced with most of you August 1st, 1869. To all subscribers who have prepaid, and to all who shall subscribe and prepay for one

Many of our subscribers will find no date on their address, which means that they owe us from August 1st, 1869. If such will pay up to our agents, or send us by letter three dollars, prior to February 1st, they will receive the

We are now in the fifth month of the publi cation of the STATESMAN, as the change of proprietors was made on the 1st day of August. During that time we have made no request for payment of subscriptions, desirous that you should have full opportunity to test, and so fairly approve or disapprove our course, people be the judges, we have been gratified by realizing a success, which, although moderate, has been entirely satisfactory. There are about three hundred new subscribers on our lists, and we constantly receive additions, as well as friendly assurances from all quarters. Of course it takes money to run a newspaper, and more of it than most people suppose.

A great campaign is approaching and we are anxious to be on hand, and always be found in the front of battle. Great battles are seldom fought on credit, so if you help us out with cash, you will supply us with the real sinews of war. The proprietor is anxious to enlarge and improve the STATESMAN, and it depends entirely on the support he receives whether he can be able to do so.

We propose to give the people of Oregon as good a paper as they will pay for, and to make it a success by making it in all respects a people's paper. If you know any good man who wants the STATESMAN, send us his name, with the understanding that he pays for it in six months, and seener, if he can. It is part of our faith that every sober working man in the land ought to have a State paper, and that every man who wants to read, one, is good for the subscription price. We desire to call the attention of our readers and friends to the fact that we now publish about as much again of matter as the American Unionist contained at the time of discontinuance. We shall increase the STATESMAN to the size of the largest paper now published in this State when five bundred more subscribers are added to our list, and anything our friends can do to help us to reach that number will be fully appreciated. We repeat again, that the STATESMAN shall be as good and as large a paper as the people will pay for. Please examine the direction of your paper and see if the date on the tag is the date to which you have paid up. Where their is no date named. the subscription commenced August 1st, 1869.

Quite a number have sent us the subscripstion price and paid up in advance, to whom owe tender our best thanks.

Money can always be sent us through the mail at our risk, if sent with the knowledge of postmesters.

All Paris severe falls. The Herald mentions Mr. B. | was thus advised that the Emperor was en route. A faint huzza and the uneasy surging of the crowd beyond, advised me that the supreme moment was near. First a iages with occupants, the horses gaily decked and the vehicles trimmed with gold "There he is!" shouted a few. "No." No!" answered the police and others. Another detachment of cavalry, followed by a coach of glass and gold, drawn by majestically caparisoned steeds, the driver and the footmen shining gorgeously in their gold lace and tinselry. Loud cheers arose around me, and peering over the heads in front, I saw the Emperor, a stoutish looking man, with thin gray hair, seated easily in the carriage, dressed in soldier's uniform, and frequently lifting his hat to the multitudes. Beside him sat a little gentle faced boy, the Prince, who also acknowledged the cheers by raising his hat, I stood with a little knot of Americans, and we all feit disappointed at the apparent lack of enthusiasm in the crowd. Once, in fact, we gave a hearty "Vive I' Empereur !" to show them our respect for the brave man that was passing by, for, however much our democratic in sticct may revolt at the abstract Imperial tyranny, and however much we may feel like deriding such glaring pomp as marked the cortege that passed before us, we cannot restrain our admiration of so wise and intrepid a ruler as Napoleon III. His Majesty passed on and entered the grand Hall of the Louvre, where he delivered his short address of not more than fifteen minutes reading, and then returned by the same route to the Tuileries. From Min ister Washburne, who was present at the delivery of the address, I learn that the Emperor read it in a full, round tone, with great deliberation and emphasis. At one point in it, where he said, "France is anx ious for liberty, but accompanied by order; for the latter I answer," the cheering was mmense. Another incident is of some int rest. When the Deputies were announced, and the name of Rochefort called, there was a very decided laugh of decision in the Assembly, followed by hearty cheers for the Emperor. Rochefort is one of those brass-mounted fellows upon whom no in-cident of this kind could have any effect. The man knew very well that he was not in the house of his friends, and probably con oled himself by the reflection that it the 18,000 votes who returned him from the First Circumscription of Paris could have a fair shake at "my Lords and Ladies" of the galleries and benches around him they would make short work of their laced coats, cocked hats and other 'gewgaws of state, The temper of the "roughs" who collected to see the show was shown in their treatment of the distinguished personages who attended the Emperor on all state occasions. These aristocratic worthles in leaving the palace were obliged to pass out of the court into the Rue de Rivoli on the one side and the Quai de l'Ecole on the other. These streets were so jammed with people that the carriages containing the Lords and Ladies were frequently choked up and stopped for minutes at the time, during which, rough men and women crowded against the wheels and peered impudently in at the enjoined turther proceedings. . . . The public windows. At one moment a knot of mischievious Americans by way of experiment, started a groan, which the crowd quickly caught and continued for some time, winding up with cheers for Rochefort. The behavior of the dignitaries under all this rudeness and i sult was a pattern of nonchal-
