The Committee recommend that the County Convention for the election of Delegates be held on Saturday, the 26th of March, 1870. By order of the State Central Committee.

M. P. BERRY, Chairman. T. B. ODENEAL, Secretary Portland, January 19, 1870.

MEETING OF MARION COUNTY CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

The Republican Central Committee of Marion county is hereby requested to meet at the Island. Court House, in Salem, on Saturday, Feb. 12th, 1870, at 1 o'clock, p. m., for the purpose of making arrangements for holding a Republican County Convention, and to attend | ment or not acted upon it : to such further business as may properly come

The Central Committee, appointed by the County Convention in 1868, is composed of the following members : East Salem, J. H. Moores : Salem, John Minto ; North Salem, rora, R. Duval; Sublimity, J. Barker.

J. H. Moones, Ch'n. Co. Com. Editorial Correspondence at a distance, I was compelled last Tuesday morning to take the stage for Portland, there being no boat at the wharf. A stage ride In the first place, the roads are bad-a mild expression, but every body knows they are "shocking" bad. In the second place, the mail coach is a mud wagon, the drivers' seat in the present instance being the perquisite of a "through passenger, who had been tammed through from Sacramento and had therefore pre-empted the accommodations for the balance of the route. Lastly. the mud wagon was to start at the owlish hour of 2 a. m., so the journey was initiated by the cheerful experiment of lying awake all night to be up early in the morning. The law of compensation is fortunately still in force, and I have to recount the following favoring circumstances: Our friend Bascom provided a bed where I had an hour's sleep, and called me in time for a beef steak and cup of coffee to fortify the inner man for the voyage. The rainy season had let up and the night was beautiful. So we coursed through the silent streets of Salem, and under Phil.Miller's skillful guidance, dashed boldly into the ruts and mud holes that lay beyond. The night and its wonderful beauty afforded a pleasure that almost compensated for all the discomforts of the journey. Every star was brilliant and the starlight had a rival, we soon discovered, in the Northern Lights, for the Aurora Borealis had chosen that morning for one of its most brilliant displays-the most beautiful I have witnessed in many years. The regions of the pole were glowing with magnetic brilliance, and an occasional pilolet or red. The most beautiful sight I re-to wi ness the wonderful magnificence of

I am writing this in one of the rooms of the Hospital of the Sisters of Charity, by the beadside of a dying man who blesses God that he has the attendance of a relative at this trying hour. Looking from my window down a pleasant slope on which is ette river Mt. St. Helens is scarcely less impressive. Twenty years ago I first saw tives and had come together to try life in Oregon.
