WORLDLY WUE. BY ALICE CARRY.

It was the boatman Rousalee,
And he sailed through the mists so white;
And two little ladies sat at his knee,
With their two little heads so bright;

And so they sailed and sailed—all three On the golden coast o' the night. Young Ronsalee had a handsome face, And his great beard made him brown; And the two little ladies in girlish glee, They kept their syelids down— The one in her silken veil of lace,

And the one in her woolsey gown. For one little lady lived in the wood, Like a flower that hides from the day; life name was Jenny they called her the good; And the name of the other was May, And her palace window looked on the flood, Where they softly sailed away.

Long time the balance even stood
With our Ronsalee that day;
But what was a little house in the wood
To a palace grand and gay!
So he gave his heart to Jenny, the good,
And his hand he gave to May. GROWING OLD.

We are growing old I how the thought will When a glance is backward cast On some long-remembered spot that lies In the silence of the past !

It may be the shrine of our early rows, Or the tomb of our early tears; But it seems like a far-off isle to us In the stormy sea of years.

Oh ! wide and wild are the waves that part Our steps from its greenness now And we miss the joy of many a heart And the light of many a brow;

For deep o'er many a stately bark Have the 'whelming billows rolled, That steered with us from that early mark; Oh friends ! we are growing old, Old in the dimness of the dust

Of our daily toils and cares; Old in the wreeks of love and trust Which our burdened memory bears. Each form may wear, to the passing gaze, The bicom of life's freshness yet; And beams may brighten our latter days Which the morning never met;

But, ch! the changes we have seen
In the far and winding way!
The graves in our path that have grown And the locks that have grown gray !

The winters on our own may spare
The sable or the gold;
But we see their snows upon brighter hair,
And, friends, we are growing old. We have gained the world's cold wisdom now,

We have learned to praise and fear;
But where are the living fents whose flow,
Was a joy of hearts to hear? We have won the wealth of many a clime, And the lore of many a page; But where is the hope that saw in time But its boundless heritage?

Will it come sgain when the violet wakes, And the woods their youth renew? We have stood in the light of sunny brakes Where the bloom is deep and blue.

And our souls might joy in the spring-time But the joy was faint and cold, For it never could give up the youth again Of hearts that are growing old.

FURTHER IS REGARD TO THE RESCUE or Miss Mointian .- We are in receipt of additional facts regarding the cap-tive white girl, Miss McIntire, lately in the camp of and held by the band of Bannacks camped on the Yellowstone, whom Messrs. Cotter and Kutch, by a deagerous and severe mid-winter trip through Eastern Montana, succeeded in rescuing. The girl, we are now informed, is personally acquainted with Mr. Kutch, one of the gentlemen dis-patched by Col. Wham to cause her return to Shoshone Agency, while Mr. Cotter, on the same mission, is well some of our citizens, who wouch for him as a gentleman of perfect reliability. The girl berself was extremely anxious to return with Cotter and Kutch, and chiefs of the Bannacks expressed their willingness to have her return with them. Lieut. Pease, in charge of the Yellowetone Mission, expressed him-self—so we are told by Messrs. Cotter and Kutch-willing, under these cirder their protection. But when arrangements had been made to start back, Lieut. Peace bad gone to Helena, and an order was promulgated by Col. Baker under which Miss McIntire is held by the authorities at the Yellowstone Mission. Mr. Cotter will remain in Bozeman while Mr. Kutch returns to Wyoming for further instructions, and in the meantime the young lady is represented to be very anxious to go back at once. For the above facts we are indebted these gentlemen, who both called on us at the same time .-

THE PRESIDENT'S HABITS .- A Washington correspondent furnishes this:
The President and Vice-President are regular attendants at the Metropol itan Methodist Church, which is a new thing under the sun; for even Mr. Lincoln, with his devotional and religious tendencies, could not always find time to visit the temples on Sunday. Mr. Johnson seldom went to church, or any other public place for that matter. Very different in that respect is General Grant, who seems to enjoy a daily promenade on the avenue, scanning with his sharp, rest-less eye, all the novelties of dress and figure which ornament that magnificent thoroughfare in the mellow, sunny afternoons of this charming climate. The President and Mrs. Grant, somewhat to the chagrin of the old regime, have both broken the law of etiquette which forbid visiting, and are seen among their friends as though they were made of the same clay, and pos sessed common and human sympathies, all of which we, common people, rather like and commend.

Le Mans is a very ancient town in the department of the Sarthe, on the Sarthe river, one hundred and twelve miles south-west of Paris. From a high hill run down streets, straight and broad natil they approach the river, when they become narrow and tortoous, dirty and alimy. Across the river are thrown the bridges, which are not distinguished for anything particularly. In the center of the town is a large open market place, toward which the principal streets tend. This city is the great railroad centre of West France, being connected with Paris, Cherourg, Brest, Tours, Bordeaux, etc., and its loss must prove very serious to tion. Its history is interesting, but we have no space for that; suffice it to say that William the Conqueror, in the eleventh century, took it after a fierce fight, and that it remained long in the hands of the English. HAMILTON FIRM, Secretary of State.

The Next Presidency-Vice President Collax on the Situation.

[From the New York Herald, Jane 8th] Vice President Colfax, who has over and again reiterated his determination to retire to private life after his present term of office expires, and who declines under any circumstances, to be considered as one of the numerous aspirante for the next Presidency, is out in an article in this week's Independent, in which he takes up the cudgel for the Republican party in his usual vigorous "The future of the Republican is its title. Of course the theme affords Colfax a wide field for peculation. He believes that the prophets of evil," who crosk about " new party" that mest of peressit arise out of the ashes of the old Republican party to carry the next election are crosking in vain, and that the same rote which carried Lincoln triumphant y to the White House will again place General Grant at the head of the natio in 1872. Colfax argues from the past record of the Republican party to show that it has by no means lost its hold on the affections of the people : and as to the Southern States which have lately gone Democratic, instead of their being an indication of the way the Presidential election of 1872 will go, he declares that the results of thes same triumphs will serve but to strenghten the Republicans as a party. In support of this assertion he proceed to detail what he calls the "results of the Democratic triumphs, South such as "midnight assessins" in Kentucky, the election to the Senate, North Carolina, of its former rebel Governor, and so on, adlibitum "What preserves the Republic from the rule of the Democratic party which contains these elements it, is the continued power of the Republican party. And it is because the young masses of this patriotic organization who, without the lead of politicians, created it, realize that it was a reform party of its birth, and has been UNITED STATES MAILS. a reform party during all its existence, and has carried through more vital reform than all other parties in our cen-tury of national life, and can elaborate and consummate all needed reforms in the future as their necessity becomes apparent, that they intend to win another triumph for it and their standanother triumph for it and their stand-and bearers in 1872. However the Contract Office of this Department until 3 President, as a successful candidate in President, as a successful candidate in p. m. of March 1, 1871, to be decided by 1868, may be criticised or attacked, I March 30 following : believe him stronger with the people at large than he was when thus chosen. 15142 From Brownsville, by Crawfordsthen there were fears with some that, though a Republican, be might not be in his advanced line. Who fears it now? Some doubted whether, with a life spent in armies, and all his name won there, he might not be too quick in pushing international questions to a warlike settlement. Let his stand in regard to Cuban intervention, despite his personal sympathies with that struggling people, prove how these doubts have been dispelled. * * * General Grant (with some one of the many prominent Republicans East or South, whom all confide in and all delight to bonor, associated with him) will, I sincerely believe, lead the Republican phalanx, as he has so often led them under his banner, to a signal and auspicious victory. And it will be a victory that will give stability and

AMERICAN BROILER PATENTED

The Finest Culinary Invention of the Age.

Embedying in a plain and cheap utenail, (a simple as a pot or skillet, and weighing less than All the principles involved in the REAL ESTATE perfect broiling of mea's with the greatest conveniences and advantages of practical use, and doing its work with a repidity more than double that of any other brotter. It affords to the poor and rich alike the first and only relief ever offered from the tedious, troublesome, juice evaporating, dyepopsia pro-ducing broilers of the past, from the deadly for to human health, the FRYING PAN, and from MEAT COOKING ABOMINATIONS OF ALL DEGREES.

It renders broiling, heretofore so vexatious, the QUICKEST AND EASIEST OF ALL MODES OF COOKING, and meats broiled by it MORE PALATABLE AND NUTRICIOUS than any other mode of cooking them, because it prevents the loss of nutriment by evaporation or otherwise. It sets on top of the stove or range, over one of the openings; requires no preparation of fire; no Coke or Charcoal; no jounding of Steak; reniers tugh meat tender by its action; does away with all smoke and smell of grease; broils equally well over Coal or Wood, answers for all equally well over Coal or Wood; answers for all sized stove or range openings, and is EQUALLY GOOD FOR BERFATEAR, CHICKENS, HAMS, CHOP, FISH AND OYATERS.

It broils steak over an average fire within five minutes. Other meats in proportion; and retains ALL THE JULIES AND FLAVOR, which no other broiler does.
