A CRANK.—Jeff Davis is an undeubted orank. He cannot be otherwise than incase then his goss up, as he is reported to have done the other day before the State of Oragon was held on Saturday in Southern historical society and declared with regard the lost cause, "that had known what was to be inflicted upon me, all that this county was to suffer, all that our posterity was to endure, I would do it over and over again." Strange to say, this was greeted with "tremendeous applause," if we are to believe the reporter. It is inconceivable that a man lives who in his right mind would assist to make his country a slaughter pen, for the amount of justice and right that was involved in the cause of the late confederacy, with his eyes open to the useless waste of blood and treasure that was involved.
