Corvallis Gazette: Tresday, about ten head of horses got into a field on Haman Lewis's place, near town, through a pair of bars which had been let down. Mr. Lewis went out to the field and started to drive them out, when they became frightened and ran toward a barbed-wire fence which surrounds the field. Five of the horses ran full tilt into the fence, and four of them were horribly mangled by the barbs, rendering them practically useless. Three of the horses injured be longed to Mr. Davis, and were worth considerable money. Mr. Eglin places his damages at $400, which is said to be a reasonable sum, and will ask Mr. Lewis to make good the loss, as the accident was due to his carelessness in leaving his is reported by vessels running between bars open, and also to the fact that the Puget sound and San Francisco. was due to his carelessness in leaving his fence was built solely with wire without being surmounted by a board or rail, as required by law. A MODERN CASABIANCE.

The spirit of Casabianca is not dead at least it was not some sixteen years ago. Possibly, in these modern days, it is slightly mingled with mischief, as this story of war times indicates. An Irishman stationed at Pensacola, in 1861, was placed upon picket one night on the beach, with orders to walk between two points and to allow no one to pass without whispering the countersign.

About midnight the Corporal with the relief discovered by the moonlight that the sentinel was up to his waist in water, the tide having set in since he was posted

"Who goes there?" "Relief."

"Halt, relief; advance, corporal, and give the countersign.' Corporal-I am not going in there to be drowned. Come out here and let me relieve von. Sentinel-Will I, indade! The liftin-ant tould me not to lave me post.

Corporal—Well, then, I'll leave you in the water all night (turning away at the moment) Sentinel-Halt! I'll put a hole in ye if ye pass widout the countersign. Thim's me orders from the liftenant (cocking and leveling his gun). Corporal-You stupid, everybody will hear me if I bawl it out to you.

Sentinel—Yis, me darlint; an' the liftenant said it must be given in a whis-per. In with ye! Me finger's on the trigger, and me gun may go off. The corporal had to yield, and wade in to the sentinel, who exclaimed: jabers, it's well you've come; the bastely tide has almost drowned me!"-[Youths KEYES .- Suddenly at her home near Lafayette, May 12th, 1887 Mrs. Mary A. C. Keyes, wife of F. T. Keyes.

Mrs. Keyes came across the plains to Oregon with her grandfather, T. D. Kaiser, in the year 1844, and lived with her grand parents near Salem till her marriage to F. T. Keyes, Esq., of Lafayette. She has a number of relatives in Salem and vicinity; was a cousin of Hon. Tilmon Ford, of this city. Her relatives and many friends deeply sympathize with her bereaved husband and chidren. "Just across on the other shore she awaits the coming of her loved ones.'

OSBORN.-Near Salem, May 5, 1887, Miss Belle Osborn, aged 15 years, 8 months, and 9 days.

For ten long weeks her friends watched over her and did everything they could for her, but with all their kindness they could not help her. She died peaceful and happy. She was baptized about three weeks before she died, and after that, when her physician and friends would come, she would ask them to pray with her. She called her father and mother, brothers and sisters, to her bed and asked them to meet her in heaven. It was hard to see her die, for we loved her dearly, but she has gone; our sister has left us; the voice of the Great Commander, the Captain of our salvation, has called her from our ranks to a higher place prepared for her. Thank God, while we weep as parents, brothers, sis-ters, and friends, over her grave, we also rejoice that although she be buried, she shall rise again. She is not dead, but aged 76 years. Gilham came from Macoupin county in Illinois to Oregon in 1852, and in the winter of the same year settled at Mount Tabor, where he has ever since resided. He was known as Capt. Gil-ham, from the fact that he was captain of the company with which he crossed the plains thirty-five years ago. He was a man of noble qualities, was a Christian without cant or hypocrisy, and according to the testimony of those who knew him longest, was always earnest, courageous. and absolutely free from physical or mental fear. In school and local matters he was always a main pillar where he lived. To political strife he had a natural aversion, and though often urged to become a candidate, would not consent. He died with the same spirit and courage with which he had lived, talking cheerfully and in a spirit of confident resignation, even to his last hours. He was the father of Mrs. W. W. Skinner and Fred. Gilham, of this city, who left for Mt. Tabor yesterday to attend the funeral.

WHY HE CARRIED A POTATO.

THE BROKER ALWAYS KEPT ONE IN HIS HIP POCKET.

He Bid Not Carry It For Luck, But to Keep Rheumatism at Bay-A Friend Points Out a Better Thing and Investigation Proves Rim to be Right-A onderful Discovery.

New York World, March 6, 1887

kers on their way to Wall gin their day's business. Four nattylooking men occupied the cross seats opposite each other in the middle of the car. They were evidently well acquainted and old-time social as well as business friends. The talk was stocks, of course -how Lackawanna went down and O. T. up and down, and the discussion was getting warm when the oldest member of the party pulled out a handkerchief from his hip-pocket and in the action dropped something on the floor. All four stopped talking until the lost object was finally fished out from under a seat. The finder gravely examined it, held it up for the

What the deuce is it?" "A potato," replied the owner, looking a little sheepish and reaching out for it.

"What are you carrying it around in your pocket for? Do you expect a famine? Have you got a steak also in your coat pecket?"

"No, but I want my potato. It is for rheumatism. "For rheumatism ?"

"Yes; don't you know that if you carry a potato in your pocket it will cure rheumatism? It hasn't cured me yet," he added thoughtfully, caressing his knee with gentle touch, "but I live in hope. So give me my potato."

He got his mascot and the other three gentlemen laughed at the superstition of their friend, who went on to tell how he had suffered for two years with twinges of rheumatism and how nothing seemed to do him any good. The one who had found the potato said that it served him right to suffer so. Any man who did not know enough to take the proper medicine ought to have the rheumatism, and have it bad, too. The potato carrier protested that he had tried all kinds of remedies and employed the best physicians in New York city, but without effect, "But you haven't tried the right thing," continued his friend. "My wife was troubled the same way for years, and in four months was completely cured. I will bet you a dinner for the four of us at Delmonico's that I can tell you a secret that will make you well before the sum mer hotels open again. Of course, you won't believe I shall succeed, so I am sure to win the bet." The average broker takes to a wager as naturally as a duckling to the water, and of course the bargain was agreed to. The young man fished about in his wallet and at last from some secret hiding-place drew out a card inscribed: "Pardee Medicine Company, Rochester, N. Y." "You write to the company," he said, passing over the card, "and get half a dozen bottles of Dr. Pardee's Rheumatic Remedy, and if you are not satisfied I shall be glad to furnish the dinner. But there is not the slightest probability of my being the victim. I am sure to win and you are sure to get cured. For four years my wife was almost a constant sufferer. in the brightest weather she was always We tried everything, but complaining. somehow the disease seemed to hang on. Then an old doctor, retired from practice, who spends his time reading, told me that he had heard of a discovery of a new way of treating rhe matism. An old English army physician, Dr. Pardee, had discovered a new remedy that treated rheumatism in a perfectly new way-as a disease of the blood. The thing struck me as at least possible, and with some little trouble I got Dr. Pardee's address and sent for some of the medicine. The result you see in this wager. Why, after the very first bottle my wife was a different woman. That was only last year and ever since I have gone about prais-ing Dr. Pardee's Rheumatic Remedy just as if I were a paid agent. Wonder whether I couldn't collect from the Pardee company for the good I do? But here is my station," as the conductor called out Hanover square, and the four friends filed out together. Of course I don't know yet who won the wager; but I mean to find out as soon as possible, and will tell you all about it and the dinner. But this illustrates as well as anything I have seen in a long time the fondness for betting which posesses the average Wall-street man. no other place in all this green earth would two men dare to make such a serious thing as rheumatism the subject of a wager. I fell in with an old friend, a doctor, shortly after this and was telling him about it, when he said: "Do you know that discovery you heard mentioned is a singular thing. Of course, as a regular practitioner I ought not to say anything about it, but I have looked into the mat ter some and am convinced that Dr Pardee has struck upon something that medical men have been searching after for years. Ever since the days when Socrates taught in Athens and Antony made love to Cleopatra, man has been cursed with this disease. Down through the ages, century after century has slipped away and still this scourge has maintained its hold on the children of men. Liniments, lotions, blisters and all kinds of local applications have had their day and passed away. It has re-mained for the genius of the nineteenth century to discover the true cause of the disease. As the blood is the life, so any interruption to the healthful course of the blood finds expression in this form of pain. Now, Dr. Pardee has located the cause of the trouble and seems to have marked out a remedy. It is what men hoped for when the Pyramids were building and it is what men are hoping for now. If he has, at last, solved the problem the discovery will take its place in history by the side of the discovery of chloroform and the grand inventions of

It seems odd to the laymen to connect such apparently different diseases as seuralgia and rheumatism, yet they both come from the blood, says this physician, and are cured by somewhat similar remedies. The medicines of the Pardee Company, in their action upon the system, are said to give to the patient a feeling of freshness and vigor, to send the rich blood pulsing through the veins in a fashion that makes women feel like heroines and men like conquerors. Somehow, and in some way that I don't profess to understand, it takes hold of the kidneys and liver, stirs these organs up like a farmer rousing a lazy tramp, and makes such things as sick headaches and those gloomy, depressed feelings that some people are often pos-sessed of impossible. I don't know why the medicine does all this, but I have half a dozen wildly enthusiastic friends who say it has helped them in that way, and that suffices for me. All Pacific Coast druggists keep the Pardee Remedy.
