

Days Off

Week-End Jaunts

"To be entirely at leisure for one day is for one day to be an immortal."
—Chinese proverb.

By Edith Durgan

Sometimes the most appealing spree for Sunday or your special day of rest is a jaunt to a nearby community for dinner. It is not only relaxing, but offers a change of scenery, and if a delicious repast is a certainty, the day will be a memorable one.

Cruising about the Willamette valley for the past few years has developed a few favorites, some of which we will pass on for your benefit.

Have you been to Harrisburg? At the south city limits on the East Side highway is "The Magic Cupboard," a tearoom managed by several charming and vivacious ladies, who will insist that you sign their guest book and sample their home-made pickles. A splendid combination of atmosphere and excellent food.

Rumor has it that another Harrisburg eating place, "The Ideal Cafe," has a Thursday night special of Hungarian goulash, but we have never been there the right day in order to sample it.

Among many fine eating places in Salem, the Golden Pheasant is one of the best. This restaurant is modern in design, service is prompt, the food is good and well served. You will not be disappointed if you dine there.

"The Spa" in Salem is also to be recommended. For many years it has made a specialty of a variety of hot rolls which are passed to customers on trays by attractive waitresses. This restaurant is one of the few which serves a "pastry tray" from which you can select your favorite dessert.

Another tearoom of high rank in the valley is "The Anchorage" in Eugene. The rustic building was constructed many years ago on the banks of the millrace, but as the channel is now being changed you will have to content yourself with dreams of how it used to look or visions of things to come. However, there is interesting construction, and while the view is in the transition stage, the food is better than ever before. If you are there during strawberry season be sure to order their fresh strawberry pie. Yummy!

Have you a yen for "waffles at all hours"? If so, Albany has just the place for you. "The Waffle Shop" not only specializes in waffles and all that go with them, but is serving lunches and steaks. It is recommended for a "drop in after the show" snack, or for one of those mornings when the wife is just too cozy in bed to think of preparing a he-man's breakfast.

One of our habits has been to drive to Albany for an evening meal at "The Elite" cafeteria. You may select more things than you can eat, but the bill won't be too high, and the servings are large. Custard pie is always in great demand, so get there early if you want a piece. That is a good idea anyway, as the food is much in demand and you have a better choice if you're not late.

Corvallis, too, has some mighty fine food. If you prefer a tearoom, "Heuser's" is as good as you will find anywhere. Well-prepared food is daintily served and spotlessly clean. This place has become famous for its cuisine, and tourists from all parts of the country are found there every day. You must order a chicken pie, or you'll miss a treat. Hot biscuits, ice cream pie and in fact any kind of pie, are all of especial quality.

Another Corvallis eating place which has established a reputation is the "Electric Lunch," on the edge of the campus. This doesn't need to be described to any Oregon State college students, because it is an institution vivid in their memories. And any of these former students will tell you about its famous chocolate cake. Here you will find pies and cakes baked "better than Mother used to make" or at least as well. They will serve you a man-sized portion of lunch or dinner of the best quality, but be sure to go on a week day, as they are closed Sundays for the rest of the summer. Butterhorns and cinnamon twists are breakfast delicacies made in their own kitchen, which, by the way, is as neat as a pin.

UNITED STATES BAND TO APPEAR IN CONCERT

A United States band of about 30 pieces will visit Corvallis and render a concert to the citizens on the court house lawn at 7:45 Thursday evening, July 2. This concert has been arranged by Mayor H. W. Hand, through the cooperation of the commander of the troops stationed in the vicinity, and as an expression of appreciation on the part of the troops for the friendship and hospitality that has been extended to them by the citizens of Corvallis.

If your preference is for steaks, Wagner's on Corvallis' main intersection is a good place to go. This, too, has become an institution where townspeople gather for soft drinks after the show. Sooner or later, like the streets of Paris, you'll see anyone you may be looking for at Wagner's.

And now, if you'll excuse us, we'll to the kitchen for a bread-and-butter sandwich.

"English is a funny language after all."
"Why so?"
"I heard a man talking of a political candidate the other day say: 'If he only takes this stand when he runs, he'll have a walk-over.'"

Customer (to head waiter) — "Here, sir, this clumsy fellow has spilled half my cup of tea down my back."

Head waiter (to waiter, sternly) — "Bring this gentleman a full cup of tea instantly."

"Jack makes me tired."
"It's your own fault, you should stop running after him."

"Why do you approve of paintings in the nude?"
"Because I was born that way."

Irate woman — "I sent my little boy for two pounds of plums and you only sent me a pound and a half."

Groceryman — "I am sure my scales are all right, madam. Have you weighed your little boy?"

"You're a pretty sharp boy, Tommy."

"Well, I ought to be. Pa takes me into his room and strops me three or four times a week."

A woman went to a bank. She noticed there was a new face behind the window.

"Has the cashier gone away to take a rest?" she asked.

"No," replied the new man, "he has gone away to avoid it."

Coming home one Sunday afternoon with a string of trout, Johnnie was suddenly confronted by the local minister. There was no way of escape, but the boy rose to the occasion. Going up to the minister, he said: "Minister, d'ye see what the trout got for nabbin' worms on Sunday?"

Army Life Just Like College Life if You Look at it the Same

Being in the army is like attending college, says one officer. The first year you know everything. In your second, you begin to admit there's some things you never knew. By the middle of the third year you realize there's plenty you have missed.

And by the fourth year you are ready to admit you haven't begun to learn!
