Yankees Slug Out 7-4 Win From St. Louis Cards in First Game

The New York Yankees began right where they left off last fall by slugging out a 7 to 4 victory over the fighting St. Louis Cardinals in the opening of the World Series yesterday, but only after the Cards had put up one of the most thrilling finishes in the history of the classic to score all of their runs after two were out in the ninth.

Red Ruffing, 38-year-old right-hander for the Yankees, was on the verge of pitching one of the greatest games of World Series history when the Redbirds fell on him in the final frame, drove him from the mound under a terrific barrage of hits and pushed across four runs. He was on his way to the showers when the final out was made with his relief, Spud Chandler, on the mound.

Up to the time he was relieved, Ruffing had already set a series record by pitching seven and two-thirds innings of hitless ball. The victory was Redhead's seventh in world series, constituting another record.

Cpl Jim Shackleton On Road to Recovery

Cpl. James H. Shackleton, camp athletic manager, in hospital with a cyst, is comfortable and improving rapidly and should be out in a week, says a Station Hospital report.

Shackleton is a fellow who resigned as chairman of Essex County (N. J.) Draft Board No. 39 in order to be drafted.

There's just as much sense in worrying as there is in advising others not to.

SECOND GUESSING with Sgt. E. A. Brown

Did you get one of those free ducats to the game at Corvallis next Saturday, or are you going to be on guard, too?

Anyway, it will be the defending Rose Bowl winning football team against the club that most experts pick to win the Pacific Coast Conference championship title this year (which would automatically make them Rose Bowl contestants next New Year's day, providing there is a Rose Bowl game). Complicated, isn't it? Let's begin all over by simply stating that next Saturday afternoon at approximately 1400, or 2 p. m., Oregon State meets the University of California at Corvallis.

The California Bears are reported to have their best team since 1937 when they went through the season undefeated and then smashed Alabama in the Rose Bowl. (That was in the G. O. D. B. H.—Good old days before Hitler—when the Rose Bowl games were actually played in the Rose Bowl and not in South Carolina, but there I go, getting complicated again.)

The Bears are headed by John Ferguson, California's leading candidate for All-American honors at right end and the squad includes ten other letter men, plus a group of outstanding sophomores. The team has been further strengthened by the return to football of Jim Jurkovich, brilliant but brittle left half. Jurkovich was declared through last year because of a head injury. However, he turned out for practice this fall and has been looking great.

On the other hand, only three men in the Oregon Beaver line-up were first stringers last year. They are George Zelleck, left end; Lloyd Wickert, left tackle, and Joe Day, fullback. All of the other starters with the exception of Ralph Harpner, sophomore quarterback, won their letters as alternates last year.

Lest this sound too forlorn for poor old Oregon State, we'll pause right here to remind you that poor old Oregon State managed to stagger through a 32 to nothing victory over Idaho last Saturday. Lon Steiner, the Beaver coach, is a fine fellow and no doubt very good to his folks and all that, but, my, how he likes to weep crocodile tears for the scribes.

In addition to the players mentioned, Sam Lonnie has such outstanding players as Orville Zielaskowski (what, no Lavon Zakarn?), Boyd Clement, Frank Parker, George Bain, Warren Perryman, Everett Smith and Lee Gustafson. There's a bunch of footballers you'll enjoy seeing in action Saturday. Oh, that's right, I forgot. Maybe you're on guard next Saturday. Just for the information of those foolish enough to want facts and figures before betting their last cent on a football team, last year's game between the two teams resulted in a six to zero victory for Oregon. Day made the winning touchdown in the fourth quarter, after the Bears had held the Beavers on even terms most of the game. This year California is stronger and (if you believe Steiner, which we don't) Oregon is weaker. There you are soldier, you puts down your money and you takes your choice.

We say Oregon State by two touchdowns, but don't quote us. Sgt. Scott Miller, Hq. Co., according to word received here from his old drill grounds, Camp Claiborne, La., was once one of the leading golfers in the army. A southpaw

Winners Announced in Big Fish Story Contest; Three Bucks Money Winners

It's all over but the shouting—the passing out of the old do-re-me.

The Sentry's great, sensational, colossal, gigantic, stupifying fish-story contest has been decided. The winner and Camp Adair's most illustrious fabricator of fish yarns is Pvt. Ira Brooks, Hq. Co., SCU 1911. He gets a sawbuck ($10).

Pvt. Lawrence Saatzer, 96th division, who drew a cartoon to go with his story, also drew a red herring beneath the sensitive noses of the august judges to cop second place. Give the man six silver dollars.

Pvt. Howard Johnson, of the medics at the station hospital, ran a close third and hit the jackpot for four bucks. That's all of the money involved, but honorable mention (try and trade it in on a sandwich) goes to Pvt. Glenn R. Stuver, Myron M. Modin and Lewis F. Laborn, all of Station hospital and all past masters in the art of story telling.

With acumen befitting better things, the unbiased and incorruptible judges—Cpl. Paul S. McCormick and Pvt. Benjamin Towski and Robert Scovell held off making their decision until pay day. Therefore, while the heavy dough involved is not nearly so important as it would have been a week ago, the winners will receive it promptly. The judges suggestion that it be formally presented at a banquet in their honor and at the winners' expense was promptly tabled.

Tom Smith, Independence grocer, who first dreamed up the contest and put up the prize money to boot, has been awarded the scores of letters received in the contest. Tom will now have plenty to read and speculate on these fine fall evenings.

In congratulating the winners, Tom Smith said:

"For many years my business associates in Independence have taxed the patience of our honest and truthful citizens by insisting that we listen to their tales of experiences on fishing expeditions.

"For instance, Cliff Harden, our barber, once came home with a ling cod he had bought in a meat market and swore he had caught it in the upper Luckiamute. He called it an eastern brook trout.

"Bob Craven, of Craven's confectionery, has never caught a fish in his life, but when it comes to talking fishing, well—

"Then there's Doc Herly, our dentist, and Elmer Addison of Addison's Furniture store. I have noticed many times when they planned a fishing trip they always included a few cans of sardines.

"Glen Smith, our postmaster, is as honest as honesty itself in business affairs, but when he gets wound up on the subject of fish and fishing, he has no sense of reason at all.

"L. C. Hover, of the Independence Hardware, an authority on fishing tackle, where to fish, when to fish and how to fish, can go on for days telling how he landed a 48 pound salmon with a No. 2-0 single snell hook and a light weight fly rod.

"Harpole and Coon, who are partners in business are also partners in telling fish stories. No matter how big the story told by one, the partner will swear it is the truth.

"Bert Keller, of Keller's Cleaning, is really a fisherman. He absolutely won't tel la lie but when he spreads his hands apart, showing you the size of his catch, you cannot help but wonder how such a short man could have such long arms.

"So you soldiers of Camp Adair see why I started this contest. You can see what a help you have been with a drive down the fairway that rivalled that of Ben Hogan, he was forced to give up the game because of the shortage of golf balls.

There is now a chance, however, that Sgt. Miller will have an opportunity to display his prowess locally. Three women golfers in Salem say they will supply the necessary golf balls. They have turned in, between them, enough scrap rubber from old girdles, raincoats, etc., to replace the rubber waste in the golfballs the Sgt. will no doubt destroy.

Speaking of former "champs," what has become of the M. I. bowling team of Major Ralph E. Riordan and Lt. George H. Godfrey? Following their victory over the Finance team in two out of three matches a month ago, they announced themselves as willing to take on any and all would-be keepers in the camp. What's happened? Any bona fide challenge will be forwarded through this department.

Robinson-Lamotta Fisticuffs on Air

"Sugar Ray" Robinson, said by many who should know to be the un-crowned king of the welter-weight division, goes to the fistic wars again Friday night. This time his opponent will be one Jack Lamotta, about whom our Operative 606 has practically no data.

A blow by blow description of this colossal may be heard over your radio station KWIL, starting at 1900 o'clock (all right, 7 p. m.). Camp Adair's own program, "Detail at Seven" will be moved up to 6:15 over the same station.

No More Worries for This Cpl. (Oh, Yeah!)

Corporal Glenn S. Marie, Field Artillery, 104th Division, has been forwarded a selective service card notifying him that he is no longer in class 1-A but is now in class 4-F. Corporal Marie, who hails from Duluth, Minn., and who is in excellent health, was inducted into the army by the same board on April 2, 1942.

In order to help the board keep their records (?) straight, the corporal has informed them of his change of address as per instructions appearing on the classification card. Meanwhile he is wondering when he will be re-classified into class 1-A and when he will be re-inducted.
