Page Two

NO MORE "SQUARE PEGS IN ROUND HOLES"

There are thousands of interesting jobs in our Army. And those jobs must be performed efficiently to turn our Army into the great combat team which it is today. As our Army wins battle after battle, its victories are due in large part to the fact that each soldier is handpicked for his job whether it be that of Infantryman, pilot or cook. Our Army takes pride in the knowledge that it chooses the "right man for the right job."

Men selected to serve in the Army of the United States can rest assured that every effort will be made to assign them to the task where they are most needed and can best serve. If your aptitudes show that you are fitting material for the Air Forces, Signal Corps, Artillery or other Branch of our Army, the Army will try to place you there, depending on its needs. Our Army's classification system is designed to avoid putting the "square pegs in round holes."

Each soldier's capabilities are studied individually. At Reception Centers, inductees are given a personal interview, a general classification test, and a mechanical aptitude test. During the interview the Army classification officer questions the soldier about his hobbies, his interest in sports, as well as his schooling and his work experience. All this information is then entered on a qualification card. Although classification officers are guided by these initial tests, they do not blindly follow their findings. Through their searching interviews they also weigh occupational and other factors before determining in which arm or service the selectee should be trained. During the early weeks of basic training, soldiers are under keen observation and reclassified as warranted.

It may happen that a man will find himself assigned to a job in the Army that seems far different from the work he has been doing in civilian life. Through tests and interobviously difficult problem, in line, that he is paying a compliment to views a certain aptitude of his will have come to light which is of immediate value to our Army. Many musicians, for the 78th Congress. In any civilized Anyhow, we who are in uniform and man the guns. It's true in we all have to make sacrifices. Cofwith the president's suggestion to socialism. to distinguish rhythmical patterns. A shoe salesman, who to work should be elemental. Please used to repair radios in his spare time, became an expert note the word "opportunity." radio technician, a skill vitally needed by our Army. On the In asserting that the president went too far in his emphasis on other hand, expert civilian mechanics on entering our Army are usually assigned, after basic military training, to the providing social and economic security, one of the greatest newsjob with which they are thoroughly familiar.

Army classification officers, with the aid of outstanding papers in this country expressed

Thursday, January 14, 1943.

have no conscience whatsoever to handicap their efforts. Lieutenant The man who carries the ball, at Schmidt's secret ambition: to serve a football game, is the one who under General MacArthur. makes the touchdown. Therefore the spectators search through the From THE RANGEFINDER of papers." confusion which follows the pass- | La Jolla, Calif., comes this item, ing of the ball, until they find the written straight, without comment: man who has it, and then they keep "Pvt. Malcolm Dixon approached their eyes on him. They know that his first sergeant and went through however skilful the other ten men the lines requesting a one-day pass. on his side may be, in their ap- The absent-minded sergeant, who pointed tasks, none of them can had been transferred from Texas score, and the victory is in the shortly before, wrote Ft. Worth score

Now the citizen's interest in the pass from May 10, 1942, to May soldier, at the front or in a training camp, is something like that. The common idea of a soldier is of corrected. a fellow with a gun. It may be a little gun or a big gun, but in any case the soldier shoots at the enemy to kill, or to win ground, or be it was the name of the publicato force a surrender. The ball tion, GAB, of the Greenville Army moves across the line and there is Air Base, that made him talk. Anya score. The bullet moves into the way, GAB reports that S/Sgt. Joranks of the enemy and the enemy is overcome.

tain degree that is the right way Midway. His formation shot down It is all so simple, and to a certo look at war, as well as at a nine Zeros and "the biggest damn game. For consider the state of aircraft carrier I ever saw." Capaffairs at this camp. It is, everybarracks bag. one knows, a training camp, a place where men, mostly young men, are being trained how to fight and how to protect themselves while fighting. All of the other work and activities of the camp are of value here only as they contribute to that end. Rightly, the mind of the derful and seem to know everynation is on the man with the gun thing. Please tell me how to keep who will go where the enemy is and will then attack.

Yet that is only part of it. Gun fire makes up only a small fraction anybody for quite a while-if you of the waging of war today. In get what I mean. this respect, also, war is like a football game. In the game there was my Margie, back in Coffeyare ten men all doing their utmost, ville, Kan., doing at 11:15 last in different ways, to expedite and night? I was thinking of her at facilitate the advance of the man that time and had the funniest feelwith the ball.

In war there are a myriad men, Well, now, Corporal, I ran the cards within the armed forces, working and I wouldn't want you to feel to expedite and facilitate the ad- badly, really I wouldn't. You know society the right to an opportunity will feel a new loyalty (and let no Washington, and here in camp, and feyville is near that aviation one question mine), if we know at the front. Whether he carries school, ain't it? Margie is well and tht our government is doing every- a ball or a gun, the man who is happy. That's all I can tell youexpected to score needs a strate- for one dollar.

gist to determine the general course that he is to take. In war Quoting from THE SKY this strategy involves the making WATCH, Fort Eustis, Va., and let-As for permanent peace, I don't and study of maps, secret plans, ting you draw your own moral if Camp Adair Sentry er of Co. C., 357th Inf., Lt. Schmidt you could see the sights. Say, I am sort of broke and if you could spare ten it would come in handy as that is 750 francs and that is a lot of money in this country ... I am in good health and am contented as can be expected for being in a foreign country . Thus one soldier whom we shall leave unnamed, writes home to give us a more intimate insight about "what we have read in the point that this is a young man's track and are living there in the war, points to Lt. Schmidt as a shining example. "As platoon lead-

has already gained the complete confidence of his men," according to Capt. Robert Proebstel, company commander. "The young of ficer, viewing the current struggle,

believes the Japs are better fighters than the Germans because they buildings. ... I have gone to town

once or twice on pass ... I wish

It's A Great Life

"Are There Any More at Home Like You?"

Probably the best-known of all bugle calls to the layman is

"Taps," the traditional call signalling the end of the military day.

We never thought much about how "Taps" might have originated, until the other day we ran across an account of its beginning in an Army journal. The beautifully simple melody is the composition of Major General Daniel Butterfield, who commanded

Butterfield's Brigade in Fitz-John Porter's Corps of the Army of the Potomac. The time was 1862. Up 'til then the last call of the day was "Tap-to," or "Tap-toe," deriving from the practice of closing the taps of all opened beer barrels at the sound of the call. "Tap-to," later corrupted to "Tattoo," was sounded by three taps on a drum: Hence, "Taps." "Taps" came to be used to honor the military dead when Butterfield's Brigade was in bivouac at Harrison's Landing on the James River. It was necessary to bury casualties shot by snipers believed still close at hand. General Butterfield for some time had disapproved the use of a "lights out" or "cease drinking" service call at military funerals. Because the suspected proximity of snipers made it inadvisable to fire the customary three volleys over the graves, General Butterfield directed the Bugler, Oliver Norton, of Chicago, to sound instead, a soft, three-phrase call which the General himself had composed-on the back of an old envelope.

He whistled his composition to Norton until the bugler could play it. The call immediately was borrowed by neighboring brigades and soon it spread through the entire Federal Army.

"Taps" was adopted formally as a regulation bugle call in 1867.

So far as it is known, it is used only by the United States Army.

TAPS

their findings. New testing methods are constantly studied to discover those which will give the best results. Of course, "right to work." But that goes too late, then it will be hard to taught to cooperate and that takes "We're on the Air" was suddenly no system can be entirely infallible, but results so far have without saying and it isn't enough. establish any permanent peace. But instructors. Somebody must pass broken when a soldier dashed in shown that our Army's classification system is one of the Everyone of us knows that he has if the veterans of this war have the ball and somebody must pass loaded with full pack, rifle and steel finest ever devised. Several large business enterprises are using methods of selecting employees similar to the Army's work. classification system and have found them amazingly successful.

* Our modern Army is a specialist-Army. Its foundations where our superiors think we can rest on the ability of each soldier to do his job. The wrong man in the wrong job can cause untold confusion and delay. It in peace? Or is that kind of stoves, containing no more that alk socialistic? I don't think so, 100 pounds of iron and steel per The right man in the right iob can mean a battle won. Our but if any reactionary citizen steps stove, will save 16,000 pounds of Army sees to it, so far as is humanly possible, that no talent up to say that it is then I insist iron and steel next year. goes unnoticed. The selectee registering for duty may be sure that the Army is searching for any capability or skill he may possess in order to put that skill to immediate use.

There is an old proverb which says: "Skill and confidence are an unconquered Army." The skill and confidence of our fighting men, chosen wisely for their Army jobs, will speed the day of victory.

MUTTERINGS OF AN OLD-TIMER

In his annual address on the what is called a "leave of absence," "state of the union" the president but we can't count on the word of the United States said this: of employers who may not be in a

"The men in our armed forces position to keep their word when want a lasting peace, and, finally, the time comes. Business changes they want permanent employment hands. Management changes. Opfor themselves, their families and portunities for independent action their neighbors when they are mus- vary with the economic situation. tered out at the end of the war." It happened before, not to me

Yes, Mr. President! If there are but to a great many men. Their any results, or rewards, or bless- jobs were filled, often well-filled. ings, that we want more than we or the jobs themselves no longer want lasting peace and permanent existed. And in many cases the men employment, when this war is over, who came back were changed men. I'm sure I don't know what they Bigger men, perhaps, but not the can be. same.

But lasting peace and permanent A Job for Everybody employment were the particular And I don't want anybody to things that we wanted out of chime in, at this point, with the re-World War No. I-we who also mark that if a man is capable were in that war-and we didn't enough he can always get a job. get them. Again we are at war Conceded, whether it is so or not. and again we long for a peace that But I have a mind to the men who will stick. Again we are without are not supermen, not brilliant, not assuruance of permanent employ- so skilled or resourceful. Suppose ment, being in the service of our a man is below the average in efcountry for the duration and being ficiency. Isn't it sad enough to be uncertain about our livelihood less capable than some other men. when at last we are mustered out, without being penalized for it by Oh, it's true that many of us going jobless?

hope to return to our former em- I say that now is the time for ployment and some of us have the proper authorities to tackle this know. If the isolationists and the civilian experts, are continually checking and rechecking the wish, editorially, that he had pacifists join forces after the war, fuse the enemy, and much more. seconds before the Fort Eustic stopped with the proposal that as they worked together to keep us In war, as in the game, all who Open House radio program was to every citizen be provided with the out of the war until it was almost take part must be disciplined and begin. The hush before the signal the right to work. What we want the wisdom and the unity, possibly the ammunition and in game and helmet. The soldier, Pvt. Sol Bellis the opportunity, the place, to we can do the job, which is after all, infinitely more important than war ends.

thing possible to provide us with the opportunity to work when the

If we can have it in war, being the question of our own individual fitted into the huge war machine jobs.

be of most use, why can't we have New stripped models of gas it in peace? Or is that kind of stoves, containing no more than

"THEY'LL BE SORRY"

There isn't a lad, that's uniform clad From our farm houses, our apartments, and flats That's not waiting for, to get into this war To get a crack at the Japanese rats.

Like a thief in the night, these rats took to flight Crossed the Pacific, to our western shore Now they'll pay the price, these yellow termites They'll be sorry, they started "this war".

"WAITING"

Each day the table is set, in the usual way With three little chairs, just like yesterday And these three little chairs, form a perfect "V" There's Mothers, there's yours, the third one's for me And twice every day, when we say our "grace" We pray that "you darling" will soon fill that space. We pray for the day, may it come very soon We'll all be united, around the table each noon So with the bonds, and the stamps, that we buy with our pay Will help shorten the time, "that you'll be away."

"TO ALL OUR SERVICE MEN"

"God bless our service men each day" Is our prayer to the "mighty power" On land and sea, or in the air "Please protect them every hour" You may be Jew or Gentile You may be black or white "Our Lord above, never drew a line" He's with you men "so fight."

> "THAT LITTLE MOTHER" She came around the corner And hoy she looked so sweet We know her son, who is one of them That's joined up with the fleet And when she stopped to talk to us There was a teardrop in her eye And we knew she was wishing, and praying That "her boy" was standing close by She told us she heard from "her baby" In the navy, he's learning to fly And I thought it would take more than a million To buy "that tear" in that "Mother's eye." M. J. BROWN.

the assignment of forces to con in war more men are engaged in omo, pianist with the orchestra. promoting the physical well-being took his seat at the piano, swung of the team than in doing anything into the opening theme, Farewell else. For that includes all who Blues. He had only been released see to it that players and soldiers a moment before from a battalion march which had been scheduled." are properly clad, properly fed, properly sheltered, and are given right exercise to further their health and careful treatment to restore them to health if they are ill or have been wounded.

Culled

From Our Army

Cousins

tell.

Whether they are shooting, com letter to you. puting firing data, keeping records,

On Sunday (Nov. 8) we went driving cars, making decisions, proover the side of our transport and moting morale, taking care of landed in small boats. My jeep and buildings or doing any of a hun-I went in a small boat with a half dred other Army jobs, the men in track and we headed for the beach the Army all wear the uniform of at Fedelea, which is about 12 miles a soldier and have an important from Casablanca. part in this war. Right now there

Other troops had landed ahead are, in this camp, some mighty of us so there was little fighting fine soldiers, inconspicuously doing on the beach when we landed. But remarkable work of the most varied when I came out of the boat I got kind. Sooner or later this will be stuck in real soft sand and all the recognized, although at present a time there were enemy planes great many men in the camp are shooting at us with machine guns. so busy that they have no notion Well, I finally got some Arabs of how much good work their comto push my jeep out of the sand rades are doing in other lines. and then drove to our company's assembly area. Boy, was I scared! We hid in the trees 'til late that night, then moved forward.

The next day we parked our can nons in a pile of bamboo and stayed there for a little while.

When the enemy found out where we were they started shelling us. They must have fired 40 or 50 shells near us, but we laid on the To Benny, Hope and Allen it may ground and not one was hurt very be an old gag, but to Pvt. Wm. McGuire, of California's Mather much

Field, it's a headache. His wife is That night we went up to the front lines. There was a main the Navy. She's a nurse. But she's also a lieutenant. Should he chine gun nest up there that was salute her? Address her in his holding up our boys, so we took letters as "Dear Lieutenant" or a couple of our cannons and blew simply as "My Dear?" According hell out of it. Well ... the Gerto THE ARMODIER, Camp Chaf- mans ran and the French gave up fee, Ark., he still doesn't know the the fight. answer-and Dorothy Dix won't

.... we moved into Casablanca ... I guess we looked good to the French, because they went wild

Under the headline, "Soldiers when we drove into the town ... Admire 19-Year-Old Lieutenant they threw us fruit and cakes and Herbert Schmidt," CAMP BERK- wine, gallons of it.

ELEY NEWS, Texas, makes the We moved out to an old race

FLORSHEIM SHOES

Designed and built expressly for Military Wear

Choose your Florsheim's today ... while we have a complete size range in nearly all Military styles. More comfort, quality and smart appearance in every pair of Florsheim Shoes.

The Quality Store Since '84

Third and Madison

Corvallis