Timber Wolf Units Are Confident In Entries

'Gulls, Mountaineers, Geysers Priming for May 31 Contest

The Seagulls have been working hard at the Field House getting into shape for the Timber Wolf Division boxing tourney, postponed to start May 31, and the men seem to share a great deal of confidence in their ability.

Probably the most feared men on the Seagull squad are Young Henry Miranda and Johnny Ferraro. However, the team as a whole is a very potent outfit.

Of Mountaineers

The Mountaineers have not had much to say about their chances but on a closer inspection of this team we find some very startling facts.

Alfred Encinas, at 130 lbs. shows great promise of being a winner in the tournament. Warren Morris, a Michigan man who spends time on his furlough boxing, will undoubtedly give a good account of himself.

Henry Judd, at 135-lbs. crossed a right to the chin of one of his sparring partners and laid him out cold (with 16 oz gloves too).

Eppinette Feared

Young Willie Eppinette is considered by some of the observing officers of the Mountaineer Regiment as the finest prospect of all.

Wayne Seibert, at 168 lbs. is a dark horse considering the fact that he never had a glove on before coming to Camp Adair. Otherwise Coach Lt. Marty Krpan has little to say which is a bad omen for the rivals of the Mountaineers.

The Geysers have been so quiet about their team that both the Seagulls and the Mountaineers are trying to scout them for information.

It looks like a great tournament. Everyone is invited. So turn out and give your teams a hearty backing.

The Height of Rationing

Two young ladies were walking down Fifth Avenue. Suddenly one cut loose with a piercing shriek.

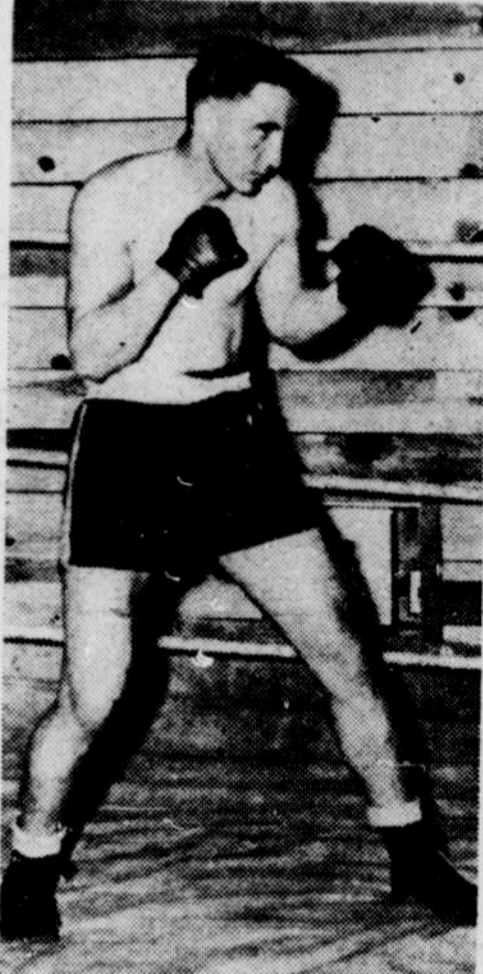

"Look," she cried in amazement. "What is so terrible?" asked her friend. "They are only midgets."

"Thank goodness," said the other girls, greatly relieved. "I thought for a minute they were rationing men."

Tourney Hope

Bud Luby of Seagulls, 157-Pounder, is a threat in Division tourney to start May 31, at Field House.

THIGHS' RIGHT—Movie experts say Dorothy Gilmore has the most shapely thighs in Hollywood and Dorothy shows how she developed them by doing her housework.

And Benay Seemed Such a Nice Girl

Benay Venuta, the blonde singing star of the Broadway musical "By Jupiter," recently collected ten lovely girls from the chorus of the show and trekked, via sleeper, after their Saturday evening performance, to a nearby Army camp to put on a show for the boys. In talking with some of the soldiers before the show, Miss Venuta picked up some Army slang. It happened that during the course of the show, some low and admiring whistles started from the rear of the audience and started gaining in power — at which Benay stepped to the front of the stage and told the boys, "Blow it out your barracks bag!" Even she was unprepared for the tumultuous roar of laughter this sally drew, but the noise finally subsided and the show continued. But what Miss Venuta didn't know was that, translated loosely, the phrase means, "That's a lot of hooley." (Translated very, very, very loosely that is.)

T-5 Meets T-5; Dances With Same; And That Ain't a Shame. One Was a WAAC

Dear Editor: I am a T/5 and the other evening I danced with a T/5 and I suppose you'll think "well if that ain't a shame in this man's army" or worse, but just save your syrup Ed. old @&();@ this type-writer anyhow—

The WAACs were at Camp Adair —Lt. Lillian Garrick, accompanied by T/5 Nina M. Keeney, the lady I danced with. I was going to get more of an interview the next day but when I got around to it early next morning the Lt. and the T/5 had gone. Probably I didn't get up early enough.

Anyhow I did learn a few things about Women's Army Auxiliary Corps and also that the SCU 1911 Non-Coms club (I got in on a pass. Who said it can't happen here?) is a little slippery around the left corner but a pretty fine floor if you stick to the middle.

Furious Weeks

How are WAACs accomplished? Well Cpl. Keeney, who lives in Seattle, enlisted last December and received five "rush" weeks of basic training at the Des Moines center. Featured in that training were first aid, military science, military courtesy.

Since, she has been active in recruiting, working from the Portland headquarters of recruiting and induction for Oregon.

The WAACs, I may say, are proud of their work and their organization and hopeful for the 100 per cent success of their important auxiliary function in the Army. Their belief and their recruiting policy is this:

That the more tasks they can fulfill and the more men they may release for combat abroad, the sooner their men will whip the axis and come back to them.

But what I couldn't figure Ed. you old @**()??@ (doggone this mill anyhow!) was what they were doing recruiting at Camp Adair. I guess I'll have to ask 1st Sgt. Jack Vinson of the MPs. Before I had time to finish my questionnaire he had asked T/5 Keeney to dance. Well, what T/5 can resist a top-kick? Anyhow, not this one.—T/5.
