

Entire 91st Division Passes in Review Before Commanding Generals

THE PROVISIONAL BATTALION of the 263rd Inf. Reg., 91st Division, passes in review before Brigadier General Ralph Hospital, Major General William G. Livesay and Major General John E. Dahlquist. General Dahlquist, commanding general of the 70th Division, was the guest reviewing officer, and General Hospital, division artillery commander, was commander of the troops. The review was held last Thursday, at which time General Livesay took the opportunity to extend holiday greetings to entire personnel of his command.

Gen. Dahlquist Guest At All-Division Review

Major General John E. Dahlquist, commander of the 70th Infantry Division, was the guest of the 91st Infantry Division and its commander, Major General William G. Livesay, at the division review held a week ago yesterday.

Brigadier General Ralph Hospital, acting as commander of the troops, presented the command to General Livesay and General Dahlquist, at which time General Livesay made a brief address of holiday greetings to the division.

Then with the band leading, the entire division passed in review before the three generals. (See pictures).

Snappy Program To Open 70th's '44 Radio Show Series

A scintillating program opens the new year for the Trailblazer radio show, Monday evening, at Club 2.

First number of 1944 will be the appropriate "Strike Up The Band" by the 70th Band under CWO Loren E. Christensen, and T/Sgt. Bill Rodenbaugh's dance orchestra will recall that perennial favorite "What Is This Thing Called Love."

By popular request, Sgt. Mattie Carnevale's rhumba band encores his arrangement of numbers from "Oklahoma" and also does two typical numbers, "Besame Mucho" and "Mama Yo Quiero."

The dance band has a novelty number called "Story," and the military band closes the program with the martial "Footlifter."

HOLIDAY TOMORROW

Division commanders have given their men something to be thankful for in the form of a very tangible New Year's greeting.

Training schedules have been adjusted to permit as many men as possible in both the 70th and the 91st Divisions to enjoy a full holiday on New Year's Day. Troops attached to the 4th Army's 7th Hqs. will also have a full holiday, it has been announced.

Somebody Steals Alarm Clock of SCU Buglers; Tee Hee Hee, Hee Hee!

Some day the six SCU buglers are going to murder somebody. This may be problematical, for the whole problem revolves around an alarm clock, missing since Tuesday.

Apparently, an alarm clock is what wakens buglers.

It follows from this that the clock which woke the bugler who was reported a month or so ago in the Sentry as having blown Reveille an hour early, must have been off its cuckoo.

But that was a month ago and now the only fact that remains is that the lone clock has been missing since Tuesday. Nobody has offered a reward.

Probably the Sentry, which is always sitting down in wet paint, shouldn't have printed this article.

Two Local Reporters Spend Day with 91st

Impressed by Typical Army Day of Training

In the interest of keeping the public informed on the activities of their Army, two reporters representing the Salem Capitol Journal and the Corvallis Gazette-Times were conducted through a cross-section of the 91st Division training last week.

Fred E. Zimmerman of the Capitol Journal and Myron K. Myers of the Corvallis Gazette-Times were the guests of Major General William G. Livesay in an all-day tour of training.

The two reporters were highly impressed with the demonstration of the famous rocket launcher as well as the new .45-cal. machine gun pistol, which was fired by the 91st Division Reconnaissance Troop.

None of the normal training schedule was disrupted for the tour. The reporters were conducted through a normal day of the 91st.

This included firing on the known distance range, the Medical Detachment obstacle course for stretcher bearers, artillery crews in action, .50-cal. machine guns in field firing, the new engineers' obstacle course and many of the other phases of training in which the division is now engaged.

Mr. Myers showed that a little hunting experience comes in handy when it comes to shooting, as he shot a four and two three's in three shots with the M-1. The two reporters lunched with Major General Livesay at noon.

Lt. Ross Succeeds Capt. Moore, Post Exchange Officer

Lt. William H. Ross has been named Post Exchange Officer to succeed Capt. Frank L. Moore, who will assume a new assignment at another post in the very near future.

Arriving at Camp Adair in May, 1943, Lt. Ross has been working as assistant to Capt. Moore, and from July until November he was in charge of PX operations in the Berd Maneuver Area.

A native of Chicago, Lt. Ross came by his merchandising experience through association with the S. S. Kresge Co. in stores throughout the Middle West. He attended the Army Exchange School at Princeton University and prior to receiving his commission was an enlisted man at Camp Grant, Ill.

Capt. Moore originally came to Adair in November, 1942, and served as assistant to Maj. Rudolph J. Ayres. He assumed complete responsibility when Maj. Ayres was transferred to an overseas assignment. He recently completed special courses at the Army Exchange School.

Things Should Start A-Buzzing

THE MAGIC ACT of the Great Lester in "Dim Your Lights" reaches a climax when the magician runs a three-foot whirling buzz saw through the torso of his assistant, pretty Diane Rivers. Since Diane has been "sawed in half" about 2,000 times, it is reasonable to suppose that everything will come out all right. "Dim Your Lights," a USO-Camp Show, will be on the Post Monday and Tuesday nights.

Varied Post Events Will Usher in 1944

'Trailblazer' On Sale Today

(Continued from page one) Magazine as a permanent picture record of their Army career, copies of the first number will also be on sale at orderly rooms. Special money-saving prices will be made for these copies when bought in combination with Number 2.

Over 1500 photographs make up the magazine, each one captioned and in most cases every man identified. The book strikes a balance among all the units in the 70th Division, with most of the emphasis being on candid shots of the final phase of basic training.

The magazine is published by the Ball Studios of Corvallis, in cooperation with the Public Relations Section of G-2.

Captain George Godfrey, Division Public Relations Officer, took many of the striking photographs, including the cover shot of a mass formation of the 274th Infantry Regiment which appeared on page 3 of last week's Sentry.

The new Trailblazer will sell at 30c, wrapped for mailing. At the same time, a limited number of the last issue will be available to purchasers of the new issue only, at 15c each.

There will be a two-hour New Year's Eve cabaret program in the auditorium from 6:30 to 8:30 with refreshments served at the conclusion.

The New Year will be brought in at the Medical Officers Club with an evening which will include dancing to Sgt. Joe Sieff's 10-piece snappy orchestra. A midnight supper is planned.

Regimental and unit non-coms clubs in the 91st are planning big dances, and all the non-coms of the Post will likewise spread their wings with parties which will include dancing at most clubs.

Cannoneers Up

Six of the Bloody Axe 276th Inf. cannoneers won promotions recently, it was announced by Cannon Co.

William L. Griffith and Clifford T. Meredith were advanced to sergeant, and corporal's stripes were given Robert E. Bailey, William H. McPherson, Jack J. DeLargy and Chester L. Vannoy.

Enlisted men wishing to cash checks at any of the PXs must first have the checks endorsed by their own company commanders.

Field Army Instructs ASTU Army

"HOW CAN SUCH a crude device perform such remarkable things?" muse ASTU men at Oregon State College as T/Sgt. John O'Brien points out the different functions at the Army Portable Water Purifier. This is part of the program to give the student engineers practical instruction.

New 'Long Tom' Anti-Tank Gun

ANTI-TANKMEN OF the A-T Co., 276th Inf., get their first glimpse of the Army's new 57-mm. anti-tank gun, the first of its kind to be exhibited to men of the 70th Division.
