Post Bowling Alleys Will Reopen Tomorrow

With the 70th Division in the field and the pin-boy shortage helping to hold matters down, the Post bowling alleys, which have had their first recess this week, are slated to again open tomorrow night, it was announced yesterday. With the reopening of the alleys will come, among other things, the renewal of the SCU officers' league hostilities.

The first round wound up in a close battle for top honors between teams headed by Capt. Gilbert A. Waite, director of personnel, and 1st Lt. George Kréssaty, Hq. Co. CO. The official scorekeeper being away on furlough (lucky fellow), the exact Bradstreet and Dunn percentage was not available late yesterday. And since it will be merely history next week, all eyes were on the forthcoming league contests.

The top score honors for the week (up to Sunday night when the alleys closed) have come to be a winning habit for Tec5 William Marvin, Hq. Co., SCU, who rolled his top game 258 to make his fifth high score of the week. Lorraine Randazzo, with 181, took women's honors for the third time.

S/Sgt. Jesse Wright, Hq. Co., SCU, is non-com in charge of the alleys.

Corvallis League Becomes Runaway for Divartymen as

Unbeaten 882nd Sickens Medics

The undefeated 882nd softball team belted their way to another victory last Monday night against the SCU Medics for a score of 7-2, to improve their lead in the Corvallis league.

At the same time the hard-hitting Pepsi-Cola team of Corvallis nosed out the Marine Corps Wingers, 1-0, in a game of thrills that lasted to the very end. Jack Sprick for the Pepsi-Cola team pitched a no-hit game to bring his team out ahead by one point.

Last Friday night saw two well-known Post teams clash in a bat-swinging tussle that tied them at the end of the second inning after which the MPs bounded forward to score three more hits over SCU Medics for a final score of 6-3.

Tightest game for last Friday was the fight between the Marine Corps Commandos and Wingers. Two well known pitchers, Sgt. Harold W. Allen for the Commandos and Pfc. Bill Johnson for the Wingers were on the respective mounds. In the last inning the

70th General Wins ONPA Golf Crown

The handsome trophy emblematic of the golf championship of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers association now reposes with the Trailblazer division, for Major General John E. Dahlquist scored a low net of 37 to win it at the association's annual meeting in Eugene recently.

To make certain that the trophy really belongs to the division, Capt. George H. Godfrey, division staff, also shot a 37. Since Capt. Godfrey is a member of the newspaper organization, judges awarded the trophy and the championship to the general, who was one of the special guests for the session.

Three former sport celebrities aided in one way or another in the Super Flying Fortress raids on Japan. Capt. Hank Greenberg, former baseball hero, is special service officer at the China air base. Helen Meany, former Olympic diving champ, is a Red Cross director at the same field, and Capt. As predicted in this column last week, Pancha Segura, of Ecuador, won the national clay court tennis championship by defeating Billy Talbert in four sets, 6-3, 2-6, 7-5 and 6-3, at the Detroit Tennis club.

Byron Nelson walked away with the New York Red Cross golf title taking with him $2,666.65 worth of bonds. Sgt. Vic Ghezzi of the air corps, Atlantic City, came in second and Mike Turnesa was third, old Gene Sarazen came in fourth with the lowest score in the closing day's play, a neat 69.

Babe Ruth—Mr. Baseball himself, is recovering from a knee operation which has hampered his golf playing in recent years. The Babe hopes to tour the country with a few golf pros to help the 5th War Loan.

Lt. Com. Jack Dempsey paid a visit to Corvallis and Albany to further the sale of war bonds. He still is the greatest drawing card that has ever emanated from the sports world.

70th Recons Stop Engr. Softballers

The 70th Recon Troop advanced another step toward the softball championship of the Trailblazer Division last week by defeating the H and S Company team of the 270th Combat Engineer Battalion, 3-1.

The game was a pitchers' duel between Freeman, Recons, and Thompson, Engineers. Freeman's double in the second, followed by Al Cruver's home run, gave Recon the winning margin.

The Engineers scored in the sixth inning on successive doubles by Evenson and Todd.

Recon added another tally in the sixth on an error, a fielders' choice and a ground out.

Pitching was the highlight of the game on both sides. Freeman struck out six batters. Thompson showed perfect control, issuing not a single walk and holding Recon to five hits. The Recon fielding was another important factor in the fast game, which took only 50 minutes to play.
