JOKE ON FUNSTON.

The Man Who Tried It Was Sorry He Didn't Select Someone Else.

While Brig. Gen. Funston's command was lying in camp near Manila a number of recruits arrived from the Western States. One of the rookles, having exhausted his supply of clean lines and not having learned to be his own laundress, asked a veteran where he could get some washing done,

"Do you see those tents over there "Will you carve, Mr. Cleaver?" asked by that clump of trees? Well, go there and inquire for Mr. Funston. He's a grouchy little chap; but if you talk pleasantly to him he'll fix you up."

The recruit went as directed and discovered Gen. Funston walking up and down in front of his tent, dressed in an old pair of khaki breeches and a regulation blue flanuel army shirt.

"Where can I find Funston?" asked the recruit.

"My name is Funston. What is it?" "I want to get some clothes washed." "What! Who sent you to me?" "Bily Brown, over here in the Tenth Cavalry." "Corporal of the guard!" called Gen.

Funston. The corporal came on a run.

"Young man," said Gen. Funston to the recruit who was seeking a laundryman, "go with the corporal and show him Billy Brown, so that he can bring him over here. And you come with him and bring all the dirty clothes
