

Catarrh

It is a constitutional disease. It originates in a scrofulous condition of the blood and depends on that condition. It often causes headache and dizziness, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, affects the vocal organs, distends the stomach, and is always radically and permanently cured by the blood-purifying, alterative and tonic action of

TO UPLIFT HUMANITY,

That is What Robert Treat Paine of Boston Strives to Do.

Robert Treat Paine, of Boston, is probably the foremost philanthropist in America. He comes of an old colonial family. His great-grandfather, whose name he bears, signed the declaration of Independence. The subject of this sketch was born in Boston 66 years ago, graduated from Harvard and spent two years in foreign travel before he studied law. He was well established in the legal profession when, some thirty years ago, he determined to abandon law and devote himself to philanthropic work. He was one of the foremost in the organization of the Associated Charities of Boston, which has done so much to alleviate the suffering incident to poverty and of which he is now president. He founded the Wells Memorial Institute, which embraces a building and loan association and a co-operative bank. The Workingman's Loan Association of Boston, which makes loans at the rate of 1 per cent a month and which has saved thousands of artisans and laborers who may be in temporary need from being imposed upon by money lenders who exact exorbitant rates of interest. He is at the head of these various philanthropic associations and is also president of the American Peace Society. In 1887 he was endowed a fellowship of $10,000 at Harvard College for the study of the ethical problems of society, the effects of legislation, government administration and private philanthropy to ameliorate the lot of the masses of mankind. Mr. Paine is one of those who believe that the strength of the strong and the wisdom of the wise should be used to help the weak and the foolish. He also believes that men and women engaged in a strenuous struggle for existence cannot be helped primarily by charity or philanthropy, but by co-operation with them in directions which they themselves think will aid them.

CYCLONE CELLARS.

Means of Protection Against Storms by People in the West.

The cyclone is by far the worst form of disaster that visits this country, coming at unexpected times and dealing death and destruction in such widespread manner.

When the summer days bring waves of heat across the stretches of hot sod, then the residents of the prairie west begin to cast their eyes to the windward. They are watching the formation of the clouds, and he who could not distinguish a cyclone bank from any other is indeed a tenderfoot. Then the cry of warning is carried across the plains, and the members of every family make for their cyclone cellars. These cellars differ in various communities.

OKLAHOMA CYCLONE CELLAR.

The popular cyclone cellar on the plains of western Kansas, where cyclones a few years ago were almost a daily occurrence, are ordinary sod houses, built low and strong.

In the Russian communities of Kansas these cyclone houses serve as the family residence the year around. They are about seven feet high and built exceptionally strong. The roofs are slanting, and the houses are set to the wind—that is, the ends are faced toward the east and west.

In Oklahoma every farmhouse is backed up by a cave, a hole dug into the ground and covered by an earthen roof. Some farmers have gone so far in protecting themselves against cyclones that they have a small cannon loaded with salt and buckshot, which is fired into the whirling clouds as they approach. This has been known to turn the course of a storm. It is a common event to dismiss school on the plains of Oklahoma when a bank of clouds begins to arise in the southwest. These wind and rainstorms are becoming more and more common every day, and it is believed that the planting of trees and settlement of barren sod has had much to do with it.

Sewerage in Mexico.

By the end of this year the capital of Mexico will have a sewerage system covering the whole city.

When the children of a family appreciate how hard their father has to work for a dollar, it means that their mother is not only fond of him, but has good sense.

Long Hair

"About a year ago my hair was coming out very fast, so I bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. It stopped the falling and made my hair grow very rapidly, until now it is 45 inches in length."—Mrs. A. Boydston, Atchison, Kans.
