

THE RECORD

Siuslaw Outreach Services receives grant, donations

Siuslaw Outreach Services has received a grant of $7,000 from the Templeton Foundation.

The grant will be used for the SOS Emergency Voucher Fund. Over the course of a year, SOS provides nearly 1,000 vouchers to persons who are senior, disabled, low income, homeless or in some kind of emergency situation.

They are written to local businesses for fuel, prescriptions, emergency transportation or shelter, propane, utilities, showers, laundry or other basic needs. Each person requesting assistance is interviewed individually and his or her needs are assessed.

Siuslaw Outreach Services promotes self-sufficiency with classes and advice on budgeting, planning, banking and living frugally.

Executive Director David Wiegand said, "Our Emergency Voucher Fund was almost depleted by November this year, so this grant is especially welcome."

SOS's annual budget requires donations and foundation grants to break even. And though the organization has a number of other grants pending, "The community has been particularly generous with donations during the holiday season," said Wiegand. "Although it looks like the economy is finally starting to turn the corner, the number of people seeking assistance has continued to increase each year."

The holiday season also saw a number of individuals and organizations raising funds for SOS.

Camp Florence held a fundraiser at Fred Meyer; Crossroad Assembly of God held a fundraiser; Bettina Hannigan held an event at her home that generated many items for the SOS shelter home; the Florence Rotary Club conducted a toy drive and brought over an entire carload of toys; Bi-Mart donated a large container of toys; author Ned Hickson held a book signing fundraiser for SOS at Fred Meyer; and Kozy Kitchen raised cash, toys and coats at the restaurant.

"SOS is extremely appreciative of all this support from our community, for our community," said Wiegand.

County sheriff offers safety tips for landslide season

A number of weather-related challenges can present themselves during the winter months, and coastal residents are no stranger to those challenges.

The following tips are found in the 2015 Emergency Management calendar, which can be downloaded online at www.lincolncountysheriff.net/emergency.

Snow and Ice

- If a storm is forecasted: ensure you have a full tank of gas in your vehicle, enough food, water, adequate clothing/blankets and heating fuel (seasoned firewood, generator, etc.) in the event of power outages or if you become isolated.

- Maintain ventilation when using kerosene heaters to avoid build-up of toxic fumes. Refuel kerosene heaters outside and keep them at least three feet from flammable objects.

- Keep snow shovels and sand to remove snow and help with traction.

- Insulate your pipes to prevent from freezing.

- If temperatures drop below freezing, prevent pipes from freezing by turning on faucets to allow a slow drip.

Wind

- Before a windstorm conduct a home safety evaluation, including the garage door and nearby trees. If you have an electric garage door opener, locate the manual override.

- If you are indoors during a windstorm, move away from windows or other objects that could fall.

- If you are outdoors, move into a building and avoid downed electricity power lines, utility poles and trees.

- If you are driving, pull off the road away from trees, overpasses and power lines.

Landslides

- Listen for unusual sounds that might indicate moving debris, such as trees cracking or boulders knocking together.

- Avoid river valleys or low-lying areas. (This will be difficult if not impossible along the central Oregon coast.)

- Be alert when driving and watch for collapsed pavement, mud or fallen rocks.
