Randy worked at McKay's grocery store in Florence and Food-4-Less in Salem before joining the Navy in 1985.

While in the Navy, he learned his trade of working on jets while touring the world on the USS Carl Vinson.

Following his discharge from the Navy, Randy moved to Cheyenne, Wyo., with his buddy, Russ, and attended Cheyenne Aero Tech to continue his education of working on jets.

PITTS—Gerald R. Pitts was born Oct. 17, 1927, in Tomaha, Okla.

Throughout his life, Gerald was loved for his humor, faith in God and service.

He had a verve for life, family and fishing.

After high school, Gerald enlisted in the Army Air Corps, which later became the Air Force. He served in personnel for 17 years and retired as a Master Sergeant in 1966.

He loved to tell a story about when he pulled resources from Henry Kissinger for the launch of an Air Force satellite.

Three years into his military career, Gerald returned home to Albany, Ore., for a period before re-enlisting. It was then that his sister introduced him to her friend, Verna Jean, who worked the local soda fountain. With most of his friends having moved away, Gerald logged many hours on a stool at the soda fountain, and soon he and Verna Jean were engaged to be married. They married in 1949 and brought two children into the world: Gerald Leroy and Debra Sue.

After retiring from the Air Force, Gerald worked for Lockheed Missile and Space.

During his tenure with them, the family relocated to Kodiak, Alaska. It was here that Gerald discovered the last great love of his life: fishing.

When Gerald returned to Oregon, he and Verna Jean settled in Florence and he fished commercially for more than 20 years, captaining two boats — one of which he sank on a rough bar and had to be fished out by the coast guard.

Gerald remained at the helm of his last boat, The Gypsy, until heart trouble brought him ashore and they moved to Tigard, Ore., to be closer to family.

Gerald leaves behind a sister, a devoted wife of 65 years, two loving children, five grandchildren, six great-grandchildren and numerous nephews, nieces and friends.
