FOL book sale nets nearly $3,000 for library

The new Labor Day Book Sale, sponsored by the Friends of the Library (FOL), raised just short of $3,000 from the sale of used books donated by FOL members and others over the year.

Sales included both fiction and nonfiction books. Adding a third day for sales of a plastic grocery bag full of books for $2 added to the event and helped receipts reach a level not seen in several years.

FOL member Marilyn Wetstein organized the book sale and was assisted by a team of dedicated volunteers.

Money raised through book sales and other events are provided to the Siuslaw Library for a number of purposes.

Donations from the FOL during 2015 were used for the endowment fund, the Summer Reading Program, continuing education for staff, adult programming, purchase of oversize bookshelves and great room remodeling among other items.

The Friends will now begin to gather used books for the next fundraising event. Book donations are always wanted

Bring your donations to the FOL room just inside the west door, or bring them to the circulation desk inside the library. Receipts are provided on request.
