AnLei and the PANDAS ON PARADE

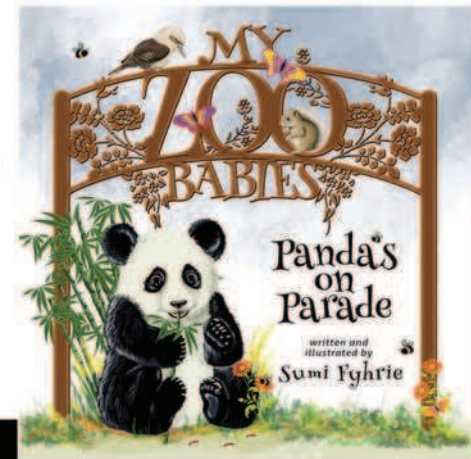

by Sumi Fyhrie

AnLei is curious. In fact, she is VERY curious. Every day, beyond the walls of her bamboo home, AnLei hears music and watches bright colorful orbs float into the sky. Every night the sky fills with exciting bursts of light that pop and crackle.

"Will you help me look over the wall so I may see what is there?" AnLei asks her mother.

"Someday when you are bigger," her mother answers. AnLei decides 'someday' is too long to wait. Together with her best friend Bird, she finds a small opening in the wall – a hole just big enough for a little panda.

COLDFIRE

by Moshé Mangoé

Twelve-year-old Aimee is supposed to be writing a paper on the Interplanetary War. Instead, she convinces her best friend, Bottle, to take a lunar flight to her favorite retro hangout, Luna's Café, for the most famous drink in the galaxy—Luna's Original Bees Knees, Please.

Their quick journey turns dark when they see a shadowy figure watching them from the lunar landscape. Then a strange, glowing egg-shaped orb they find hidden in Bottle's space cruiser turns out to be the potentially dangerous energy prototype stolen from Zenviron Energy Corporation.

Before Aimee and her friends can return the orb, two Shadowmen from another galaxy are desperately looking for the energy sphere, and their search leads them straight to Aimee's house—putting her, and all her friends, in mortal danger.

Will they be able to stop the Shadowmen? Or are they in over their heads?
