Homegrown offers cooking classes

Join Kelsey Terry, chef and owner of Homegrown Public House, for hands-on cooking classes. "Cooking for Two," will be Friday, Nov. 20, (gluten-free recipes included). "Oregon Locavore," Dec. 4, will focus on cooking local. For more information or to register, call Lane Community College Florence Center at 541-997-8444.

Haunted holiday in Old Town

Merchants entertained a variety of "boos and ghouls" during the annual Trick or Treat in Historic Old Town on Halloween. Adults and children dressed up spectacularly for candy and other treats. When the weather turned dark and stormy, people went to Scare-CROW Haunted Maze, Darlings Marina and other places in the area.

Scare-CROW hauntedhouse a spooktacular success

Last weekend, local non-profit youth theatre organization, Children's Repertory of Oregon Workshops (CROW) frightened hundreds of people as they wound their way through the many dark hallways and spooky corridors that made up the "Scare-CROW. Haunted House."

The CROW center was transformed into a haunted house over Halloween weekend.

zombies, spiders, werewolves, creepy dolls and a dead bird were among some of the many sections that made maze patrons scream and cling to one another.

CROW artistic director Melanie Heard announced that the fundraiser was not only a "terrifying blast" but that it brought in more than $3,300.

"We will be able to continue our renovations on the CROW Center for the Performing Arts," says Heard,

"so that we can hopefully open our doors as soon as possible for our local kids in the arts."

CROW intends to utilize its new facility to support Florence's youth in a variety of ways, including ongoing classes in the arts.

"All money raised from this event will go right back to our local kids," says Heard.

Even though the facility is not yet open to the public, CROW was granted a temporary permit to hold this event by the City of Florence.

CROW is already planning to make next year's Haunted House bigger and better.

"We've been collecting ideas and saving them in a huge file for next year," says Heard. "Don't be surprised when we scare you once again in 2016 with even more detailed spooky scenes!"

Anyone interested in donating scary props or costumes can contact Heard at 541-999-8641 or email crowtheatrekids@yahoo.com.
