Presidential Pets

Meet Bo and Sunny! They are the Obama family's pet Portuguese water dogs. The family carefully researched which kind of dog to get because of Malia's allergies.

U.S. presidents have had many different kinds of pets. Dogs, mice, parrots and even bears have made a home at the White House. This week's Kid Scoop page celebrates Presidents Day by getting to know some of these pets.

First Presidents Pets

George Washington had 36 hounds and horses. Circle every other letter to discover another special pet.

Proof It!

Are you an eagle-eyed reader? Read the story below and circle the eight errors you find. Then rewrite the story correctly.

Wild White House

Theodore Roosevelt might have has the most pets of any American president.

Roosevelt had several dogs and cat, a badger, a pony, a macaw, a rat, a garter snakes, roosters, an owl, a flying squirrel, a raccoon, a coyote, a lion, a hyena and a zebra!

Roosevelt's kids loved having so many animals arund. When Roosevelt's son Archie got the measles, his brother Quentin thought a visit from the family pony might cheered him up. So Quentin put the animal in the White Horse elevator and brought him to Archie's upstairs room.

Once, Quentin borrowed a bunch of snakes from a pet store. Running to show his father, Quentin interrupts an important meeting and dropped the snakes all over his father desk!
