Florence Area Humane Society (FAHS) has four mixed-breed puppies and 12 kittens at its shelter, 2840 Rhododendron Drive. FAHS staff recently spayed and neutered the kittens, which will be available soon. The puppies will be available in less than one month. Contact FAHS at 541-997-4277 for information about pet adoption or volunteer opportunities, or visit the shelter online at www.florencehumane.org.

Documentary tackles health care tonight

Health Care for All Oregon- Florence (HCAO) will be showing the new documentary "Fix It: Healthcare at the Tipping Point," in the Bromley Room at the Siuslaw Public Library, 1460 Ninth St., on Wednesday, Feb. 24, at 7 p.m.

Cookies and tea will be provided.

The one-hour documentary will be followed by a friendly discussion guided by an HCAO representative.

"Brilliant. ... 'Fix It' is a vital new addition to our tools for reform of the U.S. healthcare system ... Communicated in a nonpartisan manner," said Dr. Ed Weisbart.

The film was conceived and produced by Richard Masters, the founder and owner of MCS Industries, as he grappled with relentless annual cost increases to provide health insurance for his employees.

He decided to tackle the problem of healthcare using his best business practices: doing an in-depth analysis, finding the right diagnosis and then determining the fix.

"Fix It" is a result of his journey to find a solution to the dysfunctional U.S. healthcare system.

There is no charge and all are invited.

Presbyterian Church offers weekly Easter services

At 5:30 p.m. on Wednesdays through Lent, the Presbyterian Church of the Siuslaw will have a simple supper and a time of fellowship and worship to prepare for Easter.

Tonight, Feb. 24, will be a renewal of Baptismal vows; March 2 will be a service of healing and wholeness;

March 9 will be worship with a more contemporary feel; March 16 will be art and music and March 23 will be a traditional Seder meal.

The Presbyterian Church of the Siuslaw is at 3996 Highway 101 north. Sunday service is at 10 a.m.
