Before the Rains Come

By Alexandra Fuller
Book review by Lynda Green
In Leaving Before the Rains Come, Alexandra "Bobo" Fuller of Africa continues her life story, writing this memoir from her newly adopted continent after she marries an American river guide.

Born in England and transported to Africa at the age of 3 by her adventurous, courageous, quirky, and resourceful parents, Fuller realizes at age 16 that if she ever severs her ties from the African continent "an essential part of [her] connection with this earth would become forever detached."

Yet she does sever that tie for what she mistakenly perceives as a safe bet for a settled life in the States with Charlie Ross, far from the uncertainty of her life in Africa.

She thinks her new spouse, Charlie, "has perfected the art of knowing how to live" even though her father has cautioned her that "most people...want to be alive for as long as possible without having any idea whatsoever how to live."

In this touching telling of life on a new continent Fuller, now a married mother of two, shares her most intimate moments and self-realizations through her emotionally piercing prose and her heartfelt humor.

If you have yet to meet Fuller, first read her Don't Let's Go to the Dogs Tonight, to experience the dangers of her childhood, threats from the land, the outbreak of civil war, and the resulting political change.

Then, pick up this latest memoir, guaranteed to touch your heart, evoke tears, and perhaps make you feel a bit homesick for severed ties.

Storyteller Kevin Kling to perform

On Monday, March 14, the library is pleased to present nationally known storyteller, author, NPR commentator and playwright Kevin Kling.

He will be performing and teaching at local schools during the day and performing at the library in the evening.

Kling has performed on stages all over the globe. Well known for insightful and funny stories, Kling has worked with some of America's most celebrated theater groups, including Second State Theatre in New York and the Sundance Institute.

His commentaries can be heard on NPR's "All Things Considered."

Kling mixes humor and anecdote to create powerful stories that leave you clutching your side in laughter and dabbling tears from your eyes.

Tickets for his 7 p.m. performance at the library are $10 for adults and free for students ages 12 to 18.

Seating is limited so get your tickets now.

Funding for this program is provided by the Lane County Cultural Coalition and the Friends of the Siuslaw Public Library.

Robert Leo Heilman to read in Mapleton

Robert Leo Heilman, author of "Overstory: Zero: Real Life in Timber Country," will be reading from his book on Thursday, March 24, at 5:15 p.m., at the Mapleton Branch Library.

Heilman, from Myrtle Creek, Ore., has worked in the timber industry as well as many other occupations. His essays are about small-town life in timber country Oregon. Light refreshments will be available.

The branch library is located in the Lions Club building at 88148 Riverview Ave.

My name is Melissa Keel. I am the previous owner of Waves Hair Salon in Winchester Bay. I have recently relocated to Florence. I am excited to be joining the Cheveux family in Florence.

I have been a hair dresser for 28 years. I am a full service stylist. I have worked mainly in the coastal and valley region of Douglas County. I am excited to be living in Florence now, it's a great community. I have two children, one is attending Siuslaw High School.

If you are looking for a stylist, please stop in or call. I look forward to meeting you!

Today's 'Our Town' to focus on urban renewal

A recently released "conceptual" look at how certain specific sites within the Florence Urban Renewal District might be redeveloped in order to promote economic growth in the core downtown area has been getting plenty of attention recently.

City of Florence officials, along with members of the Florence Urban Renewal Agency (FURA) board, met recently with consultants to get a look at the concept.

Those plans and an architect's rendering of what form landscaping along Highway 101 between the Siuslaw River and Highway 126 might look like in the future were presented last month at a public forum.

That conceptual look will be the primary focus of the March Edition of "Our Town" on Coast Radio this afternoon and tomorrow morning.

Coast Radio news director Bob Sneddon will host Florence Mayor Joe Henry and City Manager Erin Reynolds in the studio to talk about urban renewal and how it works.

Adding to the conversation will be Chris Zahas, the owner and principal of Leland Consulting Group, the economic development firm that has been working for the past year to help local officials develop a plan.

Other representatives of Leland, as well as the Mhyre Group Architects, will be in the studio.

That conversation will actually cap a two-hour program that will begin with a conversation with Pam Hickson of Three Rivers Casino and Resort. Hickson works in the HR department and has put together a job fair at the casino's events center next month.

It will feature more than two dozen area employers and resources and will give people a chance to find out more about jobs in the area.

David Lauria will be in the studio along with Paula Burnette to talk about the Class Act Theater, a small, 72-seat theater and arts venue that will open in Florence next month. As a sort of a "sneak peak" of the theater, at the corner of Kingwood Street and Rhododendron Drive, will feature a reprise performance of last year's 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee.

Musical director, and one of the actors in the play, Jason Wood, will join Lauria and Burnett.

The final segment of "Our Town" this week will feature the Best of the 42nd Northwest Film Festival Tour. Nine of the best short films produced by Northwest filmmakers will be presented in Florence March 10, including "Memory", by Stuart Eagon.

City Lights Cinemas co-owner Michael Falter and Eagon will talk about short films, the festival tour and cinema in general.

"Our Town" is sponsored by Andy Baber of Edward Jones Investments; Holloway and Associates CPAs; the Archives Photo Restoration Specialists, Lane Community College in Florence, Siuslaw Public Library and PeaceHealth.

"Our Town" airs on KCST, FM 106.9, today from 4 to 6 p.m., and again tomorrow, March 3, on KCFM, AM 1250 or FM 104.1, from 10 a.m. to noon.

Coast Jewelers hosting event to benefit FAVRA

Coast Jewelers is hosting a Clean Out Your Jewelry Box event to benefit the Florence Area Veterans Relief Agency (FAVRA).

The event will be held at Coast Jewelers from March 8-11, from 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily.

Bring in any gold or silver items like rings, broken chains, coins — anything gold or silver — to donate to the cause.

One hundred percent of the profits from these items will go to FAVRA, which is a nonprofit benefitting local veterans and their families whose needs are not being met elsewhere.
