Celebrating Walt Disney's Very First Classic Animated Film And The Woman Who Helped Bring The Heroine To Life

special movements that were then studied and copied in the final animation. The relatively new process was a precursor of digital techniques used today in movies like "Avatar" and "Pirates of the Caribbean."
 "The animators set up a clothesline, from which hung a bunch of ropes representing trees and branches that I had to push aside. My acting came out of instinct because I was not a trained actress. All of that gave them much more of a guide for Snow White's movements." Champion often added ideas on what she thought the character might do to elaborate or extend the action of a particular scene.

In addition to "Snow White," she modeled for the Blue Fairy in "Pinocchio," Hyacinth Hippo in the "Dance of the Hours" segment of "Fantasia" and Mr. Stork in "Dumbo."
 She remembers her Disney days with fondness. "The atmosphere was like a giant high school or college, as far as I was concerned. Mr. Disney, for me, was like a very friendly head principal. Of course, that's a 14-year-old's point of view. I remember that he was probably one of the most important men in Hollywood, certainly in animation, and probably in the movie industry."

the film's lessons firsthand was a young dancer whom Walt Disney auditioned as one of 300 and then ultimately chose to be the "live-action" model for Snow White. Her name was Marjorie Celeste Belcher, daughter of a Hollywood ballet coach, who later became known as legendary dancer and choreographer Marge Champion.
 "Scouts from the studio came to watch my father's class and they narrowed it down to three of us," Champion told CBS News years later. "I was thrilled to finally get the opportunity, but more important for this 14-year-old girl, it was the chance to get out of Hollywood High four days a month," she admitted.
 Walt and his animators wanted to make Snow White look as human as possible. So they filmed Marge performing dances and improvising

Marge is a Trustee Emeritus of the Williamstown (Mass.) Theatre Festival (near her home in Stockbridge), has taught master classes at the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, and was a member of the Advisory Board of the Berkshire Theatre Festival. In 1997, Massachusetts honored Marge with its Commonwealth Award, citing her "leadership as a true patron of the arts."
 Finally, Ms. Champion has the unique distinction of sharing a star on Hollywood Boulevard Walk of Fame with this favorite character she played. Both she and Snow White each have their own!
