

THINK GREEN — 2016 GREEN FAIR EXHIBITORS

Adaptive Seeds — Sarah Kleeger and Andrew Still both grew up in Southern California surrounded by concrete. They met in college and started working on organic farms together in 2003, driven by a desire to reconnect with and help restore the natural world. In 2006-07, they started the Seed Ambassadors Project, traveling, sharing and collecting seeds in Northern and Eastern Europe. In 2009, they established Adaptive Seeds and moved to Open Oak Farm in Sweet Home, Ore. Adaptive Seeds stewards rare, diverse and resilient seed varieties for ecologically minded farmers, gardeners and seed savers. Most of our seed is adapted to the Pacific Northwest and other short season northern climates. We sell only public domain, open pollinated seed, as well as many diverse gene-pool mixes. All of our seed is grown by either us or a few regional friends who help with isolation needs.

Remodel jobs reuse lumber by taking it to Habitat for Humanity Restore. Demolition projects get recycled by taking concrete and brush to Sand Rnd for repurposing as fill material and composting. Florence Food Share, the top community organization, composts around 100 pounds of spoiled produce monthly from local suppliers, reuses produce and egg boxes and plastic bags, uses a rainwater catchment system for their gardens, installed thermostats and changed reusable dishware. Siuslaw Genealogical Society also received recognition for providing recycling opportunities for cell phones, small electronics, toner and ink jet cartridges. Oregon Coast Humane Society Thrift Store recycles cardboard, bags and newspaper packaging from donated items and repurposes donated items. To nominate a business, call 541-997-8237.
