An Industry Leader in “Green” Radio Technology

In January 2009 Coast Radio installed the world’s first Kinstar antenna. This technology features five 70-foot wooden utility poles uniquely arranged on several acres of forestland, using no concrete in the installation. The Kinstar antenna is considered “green” in the industry because it has a lower profile than other systems and does not require painting or flashing lights.

“Building a tower system that would be compatible with the surroundings and acceptable to the neighbors was our highest priority.”

Jon Thompson - General Manager Coast Radio
