Coast Guard rescues 3 aboard disabled sailboat

U.S. Coast Guard air and boat crews worked together Wednesday to assist three people and a dog aboard a 51-foot sailing vessel that was disabled and adrift about 45 miles west of Siuslaw River in Florence.

The crew of the Coast Guard Cutter Cuttyhunk, a 110-foot patrol boat homeported in Port Angeles, Wash., towed the sailing vessel Rogue Scholarship toward Reedsport and transfered the tow to the crew of a 47-foot motor life boat from Station Umpqua River.

Watchstanders at Coast Guard Sector North Bend initially received an uncorrelated distress call at 9:30 a.m. on June 8. Forty-five minutes later, watchstanders received a digital selected call distress notification with a location a boatcrew launched from Station Siuslaw River aboard an MLB, the crew of the Cuttyhunk diverted from medium range surveillance aircraft from Air Station Sacramento to search for possible mariners in distress.

The master of the vessel was able to contact the C-27J aircrew and reported that all three people on board were in good condition, but the vessel had a torn sail, fouled propeller and had been adrift for three days. A Dolphin aircrew arrived on scene and deployed a rescue swimmer with a VHF-FM radio, followed by the crew of the Cuttyhunk, which placed the sailboat in tow.

"This was a complex case involving assets from different parts of the country," said Wesley Trull, the operations unit controller at Sector North Bend. "Our air, boat and cutter crews were able to work together to get these mariners in distress the help they needed."

Weather on scene was reported to be 4- to 6-foot seas with 10- to 15-knot winds and a water temperature of 57 degrees.

Port closes showers to transients

The Oregon State Marine Board, through a grant, assisted in funding the building of four restrooms at the Port of Siuslaw. The grant requires that one toilet remain open to the public.

The public restrooms sustain about $800 per year in damage from vandalism. This damage includes broken fixtures and graffiti.

In order to reduce damage from vandalism, the Port will close the public showers to the public. Members of the public who wish to shower will be directed to showers located on Highway 101.

Guests with emergency needs will be directed to Siuslaw Outreach Services.

In formulating this policy, Port Manger Steven Leskin sought to balance the needs of the public against the Port's need to protect its property, remain compassionate to those in need, and not displace a community issue elsewhere. Leskin also said he took into consideration the views of guests who pay to use the Port's facilities.

Leskin also spoke to several "travelers" who use the facilities, Helping Hands, City of Florence, Siuslaw Outreach Services, law enforcement, the owners of the two private showers available to the public in Florence, and Port staff.

In making the decision to close the showers to the public, Leskin considered multiple options to keep the showers open, including creating a voucher system, taking names and ID's, or creating a pay for use facility.

"This is a difficult issue. We repeatedly came across social services providers who, to maintain their services, learned how to enforce their personal and institutional boundaries," said Leskin. "We hope to have learned from their example."

The policy will go into effect June 15.
