

OBITUARIES

CAPORALE — David A. “Cappy” Caporale, 67, passed away, May 30, 2016, at his home, from chronic obstructive pulmonary disease.

David was born in Madera, Calif., but grew up in Fresno, Calif., where he spent most of his youth playing baseball for the local city leagues.

In his teen years, his family moved to San Jose, Calif., which gave him the opportunity to spend his time in Santa Cruz surfing with his friends. He would also spend time on his family’s ranch in Hollister, Calif., where he learned roping and then competed in team roping.

David loved spending his time outdoors and one of his favorite pastimes was playing golf. He never grew tired of spending time out on the golf course. He loved the challenges the game brought and the great times he had with his golfing buddies.

He also looked forward each year to participating in the local golf tournaments that benefited community programs in Florence. The tournaments gave him an opportunity to help others and do what he loved most.

David ensured he lived each moment to the fullest and loved to bring laughter and joy to those around him. Once he was your friend you knew you had a friend for life. His spirit and kind heart is what will be deeply missed by all who had the privilege to have known him.

He is survived by his beloved wife of 18 years,

Nicole; his daughter, Tamara Tyler and her husband Brandon Tyler; his son, Christopher Caporale; his grandchildren, Madison and Brooke Tyler; his parents, Patrick and Lucille Caporale; a sister, Patricia Welch; a brother, Robert Caporale; and his nieces and nephews whom he adored.

A celebration of life will be held at the Florence Events Center, 715 Quince St., Saturday, July 16, at 3:30 p.m.

Burns’ Riverside Chapel Florence Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

CAMPBELL — Patricia Joy Campbell, 97, of Galt, Calif., formerly of Florence, passed away June 24, 2016.

Patricia Campbell

Patricia was born March 17, 1919, to Ellen Mary Joy Purvis and James Patrick Purvis.

Patricia spent most of her youth in and around Spokane growing up on a wheat farm, graduating from Four Lakes Washington in a class of five in 1936.

She had a talent for music and was able to play multiple instruments including the trumpet, piano and drums, and had a beautiful singing voice. After high school, she was part of an all-girl band that played frequently in the Spokane area.

Patricia enlisted in the Women’s Army Corp in November 1942 and was sent to Kelly Field in San Antonio, Texas. She was the first female radio operator to speak to the incoming pilots at Kelly Field. In 1943, she was transferred to White Horse, Canada, as a staff sergeant. Following the end of the war she was honorably discharged in December 1945.

She returned to the Army Air Corps as a civilian clerk and was stationed in Cheyenne, Wyo., where one day, in March 1949, a young sergeant came through the office. He briefly stopped at her desk to say “hi” and preceded to the major’s office, where he promptly asked if the woman at the desk was married — and if the major would introduce them.

This sergeant, Jackson Richard Campbell, became her husband for the next 50 years on Feb. 3, 1950. Immediately following the wedding, they were transferred to Fairchild Air Base in Spokane, Wash. This was the first of many homes that Patricia made for her husband and future children.

Jackson was deployed to the Korean War and Patricia stayed home in Spokane awaiting the birth of their first child. Luckily, Jackson returned in time to be there for the birth of their son. After a second son was born on the way to Ohio, they were transferred to the Panama Canal Zone, where a third child — their first daughter — was born. After a few more moves and three more children born in Colorado and California, the family moved to Michigan, then Washington, before settling for the next 15 years in the Oakdale, Calif., area.

Patricia and Jackson moved to Florence in 1984 after traveling around the country. She was active at St. Mary’s of the Dunes Catholic Church and as a volunteer “Pink Lady” at Peace Harbor Hospital for the next 20 years.

Patricia made the trip of her life to Ireland, visiting cousins, seeing her mother’s home and traveling throughout Ireland.

In 2004, she moved to Galt, Calif., to be close to her two daughters.

She is survived by her children: John (Jeanette) of Santiago, Chile; Jackson Richard (Pam) of Elk Grove, Calif.; Ellen (Randy) Shelton of Galt, Calif.; Tim (Peggy) of Monument, Colo.; Tom (Diane) of Junction City, Ore.; and Patricia of Galt, Calif.; her daughter-in-law, Rosanne, of Folsom, Calif.; her grandchildren: Kristen (Alex) Marjanovic of Oceanside, Calif.; Kelly of Pacifica, Calif.; Sara Joy of Santiago, Chile; Jennifer and Christopher of Elk Grove, Calif.; Amy (Justin) Grove of Menifee, Calif.; Matthew, Daniel and Thomas Shelton of Galt, Calif.; Elizabeth Joy and Ryan of Monument, Colo.; Marissa (Naoki) Campbell Yoneyama and Mary of Portland, Ore.; great-grandchildren: Rose of Oceanside, Calif.; Ethan and Cameron Grove of Menifee, Calif.

Ore., formerly of Florence, passed away June 28, 2016.

He was born Aug. 22, 1935, in Dos Palos, Calif. His father, Ted Worthylake, and mother, Maybelle Carey Worthylake, lived on 40 acres along Fiddle Creek in Ada, Ore., and for a while ran a dairy farm.

In 1952, Terry joined the U.S. Army and served his country during the Korean War. After his military service, he earned his BA in economics and MBA from California State University, Long Beach.

Terry met his wife, Beverly Marie Severino, while they were both working at Western Union in Los Angeles, Calif., and they were married Dec. 1, 1956. They raised their four children in Huntington Beach, Calif.

Terry was recognized as one of the earliest pioneers of managed health care. He formed and was chief executive officer of one of the first preferred provider organizations (PPOs) in the state of California, networking more than 14,000 doctors, 120 hospitals and 600,000 plan members.

Terry was passionate about improving our health care system and although at the time diagnosed with Parkinson’s disease, wrote a book about health care reform in 2006.

Terry lived a life of kindness and generosity and loved nothing more than spending time with his family. He role-modeled how to live a curious and responsible life, loving when the chips are down and celebrating the milestones.

Although his career took him away from that little dairy farm along the banks of Fiddle Creek, his heart never left. His children and grandchildren frequently visit and maintain the Worthylake property that is still there, continually humbled by all of its natural beauty.

Terry is survived by his children: Jerry (Mary), Michael (Pharrell), Brenda (Brian) and Daniel; his grandchildren: Derek, Megan, Amber, Patrick and Emily; and his sister, Joy Murphey (Leo).

Terry is preceded in death by his loving wife Beverly and siblings Jerry and Carol.

Graveside service will be held Friday, July 8, at 1 p.m., at Fir Grove Cemetery, on Canary Road in Ada, along the north bank of Fiddle Creek.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Jackson; her parents, Ellen Mary Joy and James Patrick Purvis; her siblings: John (Margaret) Purvis, Helen Purvis, Margaret (Melvin) Munsen, Catherine (George) Melton, and twin brother James Purvis Jr.

A funeral will be held Tuesday, July 5, at St. Joseph’s Catholic Church, 32890 South River Road, in Clarksburg, Calif., beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Burial will be at Pacific Sunset Cemetery, Highway 126, in Florence.

Memorials in her name can be made to Catholic Relief Services, unbound.org or the National World War II Museum in New Orleans, La.
