CROW kids to bust suds at car wash

Children's Repertory of Oregon Workshops (CROW) will hold its second annual fundraiser car wash as part of Power of Florence on July 16.

The car wash will be in the parking lot of Oregon Pacific Bank, 1355 Highway 101, from 1:30 to 5 p.m.

Funds raised at the car wash will be used for important building renovation costs for the nonprofit youth theatre organization.

These costs include parking lot paving (city required), landscaping, and exterior paint and signage for the building.

"Last year's car wash raised more than $1,000 for the kids," said CROW artistic director Melanie Heard. "We are hoping that the community will once again show its support for our local kids in the arts by letting us shine up their wheels."

Heard said that not only will the CROW kids and volunteers do a great job washing cars, but may serenade visitors with a Broadway showtune or two for no extra cost.

The fundraiser car wash is by donation.

Library to host Oregon coast trail guide author

Author Connie Soper will speak about her book, "Exploring the Oregon Coast Trail," on Tuesday, July 12, at 6 p.m. in the Bromley Room at the Siuslaw Public Library in Florence, 1460 Ninth St. The author will sell and sign books at the free event.

This presentation is part of the library's fitness and outdoor themed Adult Summer Reading Program. Besides, summer is the perfect time for an Oregon Coast hike.

Soper grew up in Coos Bay and now splits her time between Manzanita and Portland.

She has hiked the 400-mile Oregon Coast Trail (designated in 1975 by the Oregon State Parks Department) in segments twice.

The book serves as a practical trail guide, describing how to navigate 40 consecutive day hikes starting at Fort Stevens State Park and ending in California.

Those walking the trail will experience the majesty of Oregon's beaches in personal and immediate ways, and are certain to better appreciate the open access to its shores, a privilege not possible in most other coastal states.

Descriptions of most of the day hikes are accompanied with mile-by-mile maps, and provide useful tips such as knowing which hikes are tide dependent, and how to arrange for boat rides.

Enhancing the hiking experience, the guidebook also includes many historic and present day photographs, as well as features stories about interesting and little known places hikers will pass through along the way.

Who was Matt Kramer? Which lighthouse became a columbarium? How did The Hollering Place get its name?

"Exploring the Oregon Coast Trail" weaves together a unique hiking experience with a better understanding of the history, personalities and places that make the Oregon Coast so special.
