OBITUARIES

MOSES—Steven Franklin Moses was born Oct. 21, 1948.

Steve Moses

He grew up in the Bay Area, the eldest of four children.

Steve attended the University of California, Santa Cruz, and majored in history. While there, he participated in rallies for migrant worker rights and protests against the U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Steve and his first wife, Suellen Howard, spent a few years in Aromas, Calif., where they had two daughters in addition to raising goats, chickens and pigs. Steve began working in construction in Aromas and later became a general contractor in Lafayette, Colo., running his own business named Amity Construction.

He remarried in 1985, to Patricia Moore, and had a son before moving to New Mexico.

He married his third wife, Deborah Johnson, in 1999, but ultimately moved alone to Florence, Ore., in 2012.

A lifelong lover of the ocean, Steve could be seen walking his white toy poodle on the beach most mornings.

He was quick to smile, and he made friends wherever he went. He was a practical joker who delighted in making people laugh.

Steve played tennis and loved body surfing in the ocean. He had an adventurous spirit and had great fun taking his children to amusement parks, challenging his fear of heights on several rides.

He also enjoyed traveling, starting with an eventful trip to Mexico in his 20s, with Sue and her sister, Lois.

The trio traveled in a VW bus and had many adventures, including being held up at gunpoint, though the robbers only took some traveler's checks and Steve's shaving cream.

Steve also took an African safari with his daughter and toured Europe on his own.

He and his dog, Bailey, would frequently take camping trips along the West Coast, sleeping in the back of his pick-up truck.

He had a desire to explore other parts of the world; however, his life was cut short by cancer of the bladder. Steve fought the disease until the very end, wanting to survive for his children.

When he learned that there was nothing left to be done, his exit was swift. He died on July 8, 2016, with his daughter Sarah by his side.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Frank and Betty Moses; and his brother Christopher.

He is survived by his children: Sarah, Melissa and Christopher Moses; his grandson, Aaron; and his siblings, Libby Mayer and Greg Moses.

To honor Steve and to express gratitude for the Florence community who provided incredible support to Steve, a celebration of his life is planned for Saturday, Aug. 6, at 3 p.m., at his home.
